Peabody Victim in 'Master Mind' Mystery Buried Today; Three More Sought in Tragic Case

The tragedy of Margaret Ward of Peabody, the girl victim on the so-called "master mind" case, was brought today before the Suffolk Grand Jury by the District Attorney in person.

Twenty-four witnesses had been summoned. Twenty of these were on hand when the Grand Jurors were ready to hear evidence.

Two important witnesses, Sergeant Charles A. R. Duffee of the Salem police and his wife, brother-in-law and sister of the victim, were unable to be on hand early.

They were attending the funeral of Margaret Ward, which took place from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward, at No. 73 Northend street, Peabody. Fifty relatives and friends of Miss Ward attended the simple service.

There was unusual interest in the Grand Jury probe at the Suffolk Courthouse for several reasons.

The pitiable tragedy of the comely Peabody girl had attracted widespread attention.

The police investigation had been prosecuted with unusual speed, the Peabody, Salem and Boston officials working together rapidly.

Only seventy-two hours elapsed between the time when the case became public and its presentation to the Grand Jury.

Ten witnesses summoned before the Grand Jury were already under the serious charge of being accessories to illegal medical treatment administered to the Peabody girl.

Three of these ten defendants, girls between sixteen and twenty-four years, were brought up to the courthouse from Charles Street Jail, where they have been held for lack of $2,000 bonds apiece.

The other seven, men from Salem, Peabody and Lynn, came under bail of from $1,000 to $3,000.

It is unusual, in a probe by the Grand Jury, to summon persons who

It was 87 at noon today in Boston, according to the register of the local weather bureau, and the mercury was still going up. Eastport, Me., was the coolest place in New England, with a temperature of 52 degrees, on account of a wind blowing in from the sea.

At noon today it was hotter in Boston than at any spot shown on the entire weather map at 8 a. m., Key West at that time being 84 degrees above zero.

U. S. FIGHTS INFANT PLAGUE

Government Experts Are Rushed to New York and Other Infected Centers; Find Case in Lowell

The fight to check the dread infant plague which has claimed so many lives in New York, and which has appeared in Massachusetts, Chicago, Philadelphia and Baltimore, assumed national importance today when the federal government at Washington took steps against it.

The general service board of the United States Public Health Service today ordered its officials throughout the country to make an immediate report on infantile paralysis cases.

Federal experts are to be rushed to the centres of infection to aid or direct the local authorities in the campaign against the disease.

The board ordered out the first of the experts, sending Dr. W. C. Rucker, head of the "Quarantine division to New York city to take immediate measures for checking the disease there."

Six additional health officers from nearby cities have also been ordered to New York.

Others are expected to receive orders later today to proceed immediately to Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities where the paralysis has been found.

There were but two cases in this State this month, one in New Bedford and one in Lowell, the latter being discovered today. While the State health officials declare that there is no epidemic in this State, every precaution is being taken, and trains from New York are watched to prevent persons from bringing the disease.

In New York twenty-two deaths were reported in the twenty-four hours ending at 10 o'clock against twenty-four in the previous twenty-four hours. There were eighty-seven new cases reported. During the preceding twenty-four hours 133 new cases had developed.

Although the figures are smaller, it was stated that the disease was increasing in some New York districts which had hitherto been immune from it.

There are 400 cases being treated in two hospitals in Brooklyn, whereas on July 1 only 321 cases of the disease were known to exist in the entire city.

New York parents are terror-

RENEW BIG BRITISH DRIVE

Terrific Fighting East of La Boisselle Results in Taking of 1000 Yards of German Trenches

London, July 7.—The whole German line in Russia, extending from Riga to the Galician frontier, is retreating westward, it is stated in a wireless dispatch received from Rome today.

The Russians have begun a tremendous offensive on the Riga front, where their artillery is destroying the German trenches, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Vienna, via Copenhagen. The bombardment, the dispatch adds, lasted twenty-four hours. The Russian artillery can now fire fifty shells as against one in 1914.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, July 7.—Fighting south of the Anere river in France has broken out with renewed violence, says an official statement of the British War Office, issued at noon. This is the portion of the line on the Somme river front held by British forces.

The fighting is particularly severe between the Anere and Montauban, which is the apex of a small salient and which lies due east of Fricourt.

East of La Boisselle the English captured 1,000 yards of German trenches.

German artillery is very active in Artois.

Following is the text of the official report:

"The new positions of the British in Bernafay wood, at Montauben and at La Boisselle were heavily bombarded all night by the Germans, who used lachrymatory shells. East of La Boisselle, after fighting in which the enemy suffered heavy casualties, we captured

FUNSTON REPORTS VILLA NEAR PARRAL

Washington, July 7.—General Funston has forwarded to the War Department a border rumor that Francisco Villa has been seen in a neighborhood of Las Cuevas, eighteen miles south of Parral. He was on his way, the report said, from his headquarters at Nuevas and recently had committed various depredations in the vicinity of Inde.

British Trade Shows Increase.

London, July 7.—Board of Trade returns published today show an increase of $20,000,000 in exports during June and an increase of $55,000,000 in imports.

Complete Text of U. S. Reply to Carranza

By International News Service.

Washington, July 7.—The State Department today made public the text of the note sent to the Carranza government in Mexico accepting the latter's offer to settle all differences between the two governments immediately by direct negotiations.

The note, which is addressed to Ambassador designate Arredondo follows:

Sir:

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of July 4, 1916, in which you transcribe a note addressed to me by the secretary of foreign affairs of your government and to request that you will transmit to him the following reply.

"Mr. Secretary:

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your courteous note transmitted to me by Senor Arredondo on the 6th instant in which you refer to my notes of June 20th and June 25th and to assure you of the sincere gratification of my government at the frank statement of the difficulties which have unfortunately arisen in our relations along the international boundary and the unreserved expression of the desire of your government to reach an adjustment of those difficulties on a broad and amicable basis.

"The same spirit of friendship and of solicitude for the continuance of cordial relations between our two countries inspires my government, which equally desires an immediate solution of the matters of difference which have long vexed both governments.

"It is especially pleasing to my government that the de facto government of Mexico is disposed to give quick as well as practical consideration in a spirit of concord to the remedies which may be applied to the existing condition.

"Reciprocating the same desire, the government of the United States is preparing immediately to exchange views as to a practical plan to remove finally and prevent a recurrence of the difficulties which have been the source of controversy.

"Accept, Mr. Secretary, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration.

"I am sir, yours very sincerely,

"ROBERT LANSING."

MEN ESCAPE AS EXPRESS CARS TOPPLE OVER

Franklin, July 7.—Two Adams Express messengers had narrow escapes from death today when three cars of an Adams Express train from New York to Boston left the rails here and ploughed up 200 feet of tracks of the New Haven Railroad.

A train of eight express cars was coming down the steep grade when a freight car in the centre of the train left the rails. The car went to the right and turned over. There was no one in this car.

The two express cars following each with a messenger on board, swerved to the left, tore up the roadbed and then turned over alongside the west bound tracks. The messengers got out without serious injury.

Wrecking trains were sent for from over the Midland division between Readville and Putnam, Ct., were delayed.

80 MISSING IN BIG GULF STORM

By International News Service.

New Orleans, July 7.—A steamer and several sailing boats carrying more than eighty persons have been missing since the recent hurricane and it is feared here today that all on board the vessels have perished. Latest reports from coast towns with which communication has been restored indicate that the property damage in the storm will exceed $2,000,000.

The steamer Frisco, bound from New Orleans to Progreso, carried a crew of twenty-two men. It is long overdue and is believed to have gone down. A schooner from Gulfport with sixteen persons aboard is missing. Wreckage from the vessel was found today on Island No. 12.

Five fishing boats that put out from Chandler, Miss., each carrying a crew of six, are listed as lost and several excursion parties to the various islands at the mouth of the Mississippi have not returned.

ASKS AID TO GUARD BORDER

Carranza Frankly Admits Doubt as to Ability to Cope with Villa and Bandits in New Raids

Washington, July 7.—Ambassador Designate Arredondo today warned the State Department that Mexico has received reports that Villa is alive and planning raids toward the border. Arredondo admitted that the de facto government of Mexico is not sure it can protect the American frontier and suggested that all American troops on the border be kept ready to help drive Villa back.

This new position assumed by General Carranza was a distinct relief to the United States and orders were immediately rushed to the various commanders all along the line to keep their troops ready for any eventuality.

The very fact that in admitting that the situation was grave—Ambassador Designate also said that the situation was grave Ambassador Designate Arredondo also said the threatened trouble came from Villa's actions fell officials to accept the reports that Villa still is alive and becoming a serious factor in Mexican affairs daily.

The orders to Arredondo to announce that the situation was serious came direct from General Carranza. According to an official statement issued by the Mexican Embassy, the Carranza garrison at Corralitos was almost "destroyed" by an attack from the Villistas. Whether Villa was in personal command is not yet known, although administration officials feel certain that he was.

Admission in the announcement by the embassy that General Carranza has agreed to "exercise all possible vigilance" south of the border was very pleasing to officials here. The announcement and warning was re-

U. S. TO WITHDRAW ITS PROTECTION FOR AMERICANS REMAINING IN MEXICO

WILSON FIRM ON POLICY OF NON-INTERVENTION

Washington, July 7—The administration announces two policies that indicate the President is determined to carry out his plan of settling the Mexican question without intervention. They are:

1—That National Guardsmen with families dependent upon them will be exempted from service on the Mexican border. All steps to exempt members of the militia were resisted when the President, after calling out troops, was preparing to intervene.

2—That Americans remaining in Mexico will be denied protection of the United States. If killed this Government will consider it their own fault for not heeding the warning to come out. The next step is expected to be the issuance of a formal order to General Funston to withdraw the Pershing expedition from Mexico. Mexican embassy officials are confident the final withdrawal movement will be ordered within a week.

Another step considered in furtherance of the President's desire to conciliate Carranza is the full recognition of Mr. Arredondo as ambassador from Mexico and the dispatch of Henry C. Fletcher to Mexico City to assume his post as ambassador to Mexico.

Secretary Lansing went further when he announced that if Americans are killed hereafter in Mexico it will be their own fault.

WILL REFUSE PROTECTION.

Mr. Lansing was asked the direct question as to what measure of protection American citizens in Mexico would have if the troops were withdrawn.

"None," he replied.

The State Department will not regard itself responsible for the continued safety of Americans in Mexico. It was made plain, and such remaining citizens would have no equity of appeal to their government, since they have ignored warnings to leave the country.

War Department officials continue to press preparations for the mobilization of militia on the border, although there has been a noticeable lessening of enthusiasm for the task since the militia is not being mobilized for war as the army understood it, but for police duty on the border.

Army officers believe the order sent out by Secretary of War Baker at the President's direction authorizing department commanders to discharge from the organized militia all members who have "one or more dependent upon them," will prevent the full mobilization of the National Guard.

MILITIA TO POLICE BORDER.

They believe the practical effect of this order will be to bring about a partial withdrawal of the militia from the border, since there are already hundreds of applications for exemptions, and thousands are expected when the guardsmen find they are to be employed only at policing duty on the border.

Nevertheless, the War Department is continuing to send militia to the border as fast as units are ready to entrain. No orders have been given by the White House to stop mobilization.

MEXICO MAY SEEK LOAN.

To the contrary, orders have been given by the War Department that department commanders may waive physical defects of officers and enlisted men in their judgment, stopping the gaps made in many partly mobilized organizations due to rejections of men failing to meet the physical requirements. The only reason for this order is that if actual field service is not intended the War Department can afford to relax the severity of its physical examination.

The view privately held by many army officials is that the administration is restrained from disbanding the militia organizations at home mobilization points only by the fear that the political effect will be detrimental. Thousands of the guardsmen so mobilized are anxious to go to the border. It is the present intention to give them the opportunity, as well as others, who do not desire to go, to gain exemption under the new "dependent" order.

It is indicated that as soon as negotiations with Carranza begin the question of financing Mexico will be brought to the attention of the State Department by agents of Carranza. The State Department would figure in such a loan only by acting as adviser to any group of bankers negotiating it, and by giving its moral support to an effort of Carranza to rehabilitate his resources.

Ambassador-Designate Arredondo said he had not as yet been instructed by his government to seek a loan. It is said the Mexican government has a fiscal agent at New York who would represent his government in any such negotiations.

ADAIR, SINGLE HANDED, MET CAVALRY CHARGE

El Paso, Texas, July 7.

O. J. WILSON, an undertaker who helped to exhume the bodies of the American troopers killed at Carrizal and who arrived with them today, quoted a Carranza soldier as follows:

"You should have seen the white teniente (Lieutenant Henry Adair) fight. He was just a boy, slim and weak looking, but he fought us like a madman. He operated his automatic pistol until it seemed like a machine gun; and when its work was finished, he threw it at us and seized another from a dead trooper and fought us harder than ever. He was wounded, but still his bullets rained among us until one of our shots tore into his chest and he dropped dead.

"This Mexican," continued Wilson, "pointed out the spot where Lieutenant Adair fell. Before it were strewn thickly the carcasses of Mexican horses, whose riders had been shot down by the officer. The soldier said Lieutenant Adair thus, single handed, mowed down a cavalry charge of the Mexicans, fanning his automatic from side to side.

"Shells were strewn everywhere about the place where Adair died. His fight must have been one of the most gallant ever made by an American officer against hopeless odds."

Portland, Oregon, July 7.

WITHOUT knowing his son had met death, Samuel Adair, father of Lieutenant Adair, is dead today, after a lingering illness. His last words were:

Henry is now a Captain. He has received his promotion.

Lieutenant Adair was to have been made a Captain on July 1. Father and son probably will be buried at the same time.

THRIVE ON DESERT LIFE

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Columbus, N. M., July 7.—Five days of desert camp life along the border has worked wonders with the western Massachusetts unit. The extreme high altitude, the dry, hot sands, the truly military environment and the real camp life evidently agree with the lads who have been used to city-made conditions just the opposite.

There is yet to be reported one case of serious illness. The lads, most of them "huskies," have thus far acclimated themselves to every condition that exists in this desolate country.

FEW SAINTS IN CAMP.

They are the same good-natured crowd, willing workers, efficient soldiers and constitute a good portion of fun that is bound to crop out in any large military outfit. According to Chaplin Walton S. Danker, rector of the fashionable St. John's Church in Worcester, there is but one fault with the lads.

He claims that the profanity is a bit over-done. But the "soldier pastor" remarks, in the same breath, "Any man who can endure one of these sandstorms without having the desire to curse, in his soul, I must admit is a saint." Everybody agrees with the parson, and the saints around the camp of Second Regiment are few and far between.

Chaplain Danker addressed 300 men on "profanity." The men were attentive and one could almost see by the expressions on the lads' faces that they intended to do better—but—right after the lecture along came the usual send storm of the week, and away went fixing all the good resolutions with the sand that whizzed by.

WOULD RATHER GUESS AT IT.

So enthusiastic is the reverend gentleman about the welfare of the men that he has forgotten the date and day of the week, consequently he was presented with a huge calendar. He took one glance at it and passed it over to the newspaper men.

The picture on the calendar was entitled "A Long Way to the Sea," that was enough for the chaplain. He stated that he would take a chance on knowing when Sunday came around rather than to have such a tantalizing picture staring him in the face while he had to make his home on a desert.

One of the mysteries of the camp—every camp has its mysteries—is the contents of a small sized hogshead that adorns the entrance of Colonel William C. Hayes' tent at regimental headquarters.

It has the look of a truly rural cider barrel, but according to the sentry who stands guard over it, it merely contains stuff they put under bridges with ice in it.

Captain H. G. Munyan of Company G, Springfield, connected with the United States arsenal, has spent the day drilling the "rookies" out in the blazing sun. The sun, the captain and the "rookies" did very well.

CAPT. HARTWELL A LINGUIST.

Captain H. F. Hartwell, teacher of languages in the Technical High School at Springfield, is one of the busiest men in camp. He writes and teaches Spanish and attends to the duties of quartermaster. The rank of quartermaster means much and is one of the most responsible positions in camp. The captain delights to stand around when he begins to talk Spanish.

Captain Hartwell made a hit today when he issued the light clothing to the men. Since the arrival they have tramped about in the heavy olive drab uniform, sweating and cursing. They were given fresh underwear, socks, shoes and toilet articles.

During the heavy wind last night one of the cook tents, connected with F company of Pittsfield, blew down, but the boys didn't go hungry. The other companies shared breakfast with them.

Considerable excitement prevailed for a while today when a twenty-five coach troop train, bearing the second regiment of Montana to its station somewhere on the border, stopped for twenty minutes. Colonel O'Donnell, commanding the Montana contingent, paid his respects to Colonel William C. Hayes of the Second by sending him a quart of "bad." Captain Hartwell happened to be close by and was pressed into service as dispatch bearer.

HE WAS FROM MONTANA.

The bottle soon found many comforters as beer is on the contraband list in this town. Everybody voted the Montana Colonel one good fellow and gave him a cheer as the train passed by regimental headquarters.

Some of the boys are today nursing aching arms and swollen hands as a result of a peculiar rash which has broken out. Examination by Major Ernest Gales, surgeon of the regiment, proved it to be the "mesquite" poison, common in these parts.

Lieutenant Henry R. Hoyte of the supply department, and Will-Known of Worcester and various other cities where he has been prominent in baseball circles will tomorrow take a flight with Lieutenant Bernard Brook, U.S.A., whose home is in Greenfield.

A canteen or post exchange is to be established for the boys of the Second within a very short time. Captain A. L. Woodworth, inspector of small arm practice, spent the day in El Paso making purchases for the proposed exchange.

Captain Horace B. Parker, who brought about $125,000 with him to El Paso as a part payment for the soldiers who have been on duty for eight days, is expected at this point any day. Each train is eagerly watched for by the boys, who are looking forward to their little envelope, each containing anywhere from $15 to $15.

BAY STATE MEN UNDER FIRE ON BORDER

Columbus, N. M., July 7.—Members of the Second Regiment of the Massachusetts militia knew today what it is to be under fire.

Snipers are active along the border, Scouts of the Second Massachusetts Infantry were fired upon by Mexican sharpshooters. Sentries of the United States regular army have had narrow escapes.

Reports from El Paso today said that one of the favorite locations for Mexican target practice was El Paso and its immediate environs.

The Second Massachusetts, which is guarding the border at Columbus, had begun actual patrol service, with details of militiamen sent on outpost duty. With rifles loaded and eyes vigilant for the first sign of Mexican hostility the militiamen selected for these details have eagerly taken up patrol duty.

The detail picked for the first tour were from A, C and H Companies of Worcester and D Company of Orange, with Major H. H. Warren of Worcester in command. The major issued ammunition to the men and also devoted a full hour to telling them how to do guard duty.

MEXICO WARNS U. S. AGAINST VILLA

ceived by Secretary of State Lansing and President Wilson while the cabinet was in session. It was accepted as indicating a complete change of heart by the de facto government, and the cabinet officials also understood to have agreed that coupled with the latest declaration of principles by Carranza it indicates that there will be no obstacle raised in the way of a complete settlement of the issues at stake by diplomatic measures.

In discussing the communication he received from Carranza, Arredondo said:

"I have brought to the attention of the State Department the fact that a force band of Villistas attacked our garrison at Corralitos on Wednesday, almost destroying it. Fearing that this band might try to penetrate the desert as far as the border and cause further difficulties between Mexico and the United States General Carranza has directed the attention of the American government so that all possible vigilance may be exercised on the American side of the border between Boquillas and Ojinaga. General Carranza has promised to exercise the same vigilance on the Mexican side."

Obregon Will Chase Villa

By WALLACE F. SMITH.

El Paso, Texas, July 7.—Minister of War Alvaro Obregon is preparing to abandon his post as Carranza's chief cabinet officer today to take the field against Francisco Villa, and that renegade's victorious hordes, according to advices received in Juarez from Mexico City.

Impatient at the failure of his commanders to check Villa's latest campaign and alarmed by the steady growth of Villa's forces, General Obregon is said to be ready to start at an hour's notice for the neighborhood of Jiminez.

Meanwhile Villa and his new army, reported to have taken Jiminez, seemed to be debating whether to push the Carrancista forces back still further upon Chihuahua, or direct their attention to the Torreon district where American property to worth many millions is located.

Unless Villa is crushed immediately he will be the greatest menace that the de facto government can have, for not only will he prove that Carranza is unable to cope with the bandit, but there is no doubt that eventually he will accomplish the overthrow of the government.

Wilson Scored on Mexican Policy

Washington, July 7.—A bitter attack on the administration by Representative Moore of Pennsylvania, marked today's debate in the House on the Democratic revenue bill. Representative Moore took occasion to criticize the foreign and Mexican policies of President Wilson, vigorously declaring that the President, after making the country believe that war with Mexico was imminent, "had made a magnificent and masterly retreat from Carrizal."

"And now we are to be asked to issue bonds to raise $125,000,000 to meet the expenditures of sending the National Guard to the Mexican border," said Representative Moore. "This is only another instance of the activity of this administration."

Plan Arms Embargo on Small Republics

By International News Service.

Washington, July 7.—Recommendation that an embargo be placed on munitions of war to any other than the recognized governments in the various Latin-American countries, is being considered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The government, it is stated, looks with favor on such an embargo as a feasible means of preventing insurgent elements in the nations of Central and South America from obtaining arms and ammunition with which to stir up disorders.

Under the terms of such an embargo, the established authorities in the various countries would be permitted to import munitions from this country under special exemption. The result would give the United States exact knowledge of who was to receive the arms.

MILITIA NOTES

Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole today asserted that neither the recruits who will be sent from Camp Whitney next week nor the Bay State troopers who are already on the Mexican frontier are "it" to be thrown into an active campaign. "Three weeks in the open air would harden their muscles some," said General Cole, "but would not fit them for war."

Unofficial reports have it that the recruits for the Second Regiment will be the first to entrain next week at Camp Whitney. It is expected that the men for Fifth, Eighth and Ninth Regiments will depart in that order.

Major Bouve of the Fifth Regiment and Lieutenant Whipley of the Field Artillery are among the officers remaining at Camp Whitney who could be sent out in command of the "rookie" detachments. They will be "home" for recruiting work. Both are anxious to get to the front.

Those to command the "rookie" trains will be selected by Colonel Buck, the United States army officer in command at Camp Whitney.

General Cole said today that after the departure of the recruits Camp Whitney will still be kept open for recruiting purposes and for the drilling of new "rookies."

General Cole has informed the Department of the East that Ambulance Company No. 3 has been recruited to peace strength and is ready for inspection by officers of that department. The inspection will take place at Commonwealth Armory before the new company departs for Framingham.

BAY STATE SERGEANT IS ATTACKED IN EL PASO'S MEXICAN QUARTER

BOYS OF THE BAY STATE'S "FIGHTING NINTH" PITCH THEIR CAMP LIKE VETERANS UNDER THE BLAZING SUN AT EL PASO

General view of the site of the Ninth's camp at El Paso shortly after the regiment arrived.

Trees are at a premium in El Paso. A company of the Ninth is shown at the noonday meal after a hot morning's work, making the best of the shade offered by a clump of trees. The mercury was about the 100 mark when this picture was taken.

Members of the Ninth unloading supplies from transport wagons at the border. Regulars cautioned the guardsmen engaged in this work to "go slow" and lessen the danger of heat prostration.

STONE STUNS MEMBER OF NINTH REGIMENT

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., July 7.—Sergeant John J. Dowd, C Company, Ninth Regiment, was the first New England soldier to suffer at the hands of the Mexicans. Dowd was knocked down and stunned by a stone flung in the dark while passing a group of adobe huts on the outskirts of Camp Cotten, where the Bay State Infantry is quartered.

He had been in the city on liberty and was returning to camp in the evening. There is a little colony of Mexicans close to the Twenty-third Infantry's station, just west of the Massachusetts troops. Sergeant Dowd was alone. He had just passed an adobe hut and a clump of bushes, when he received a blow that caused him to reel and drop.

Fortunately the provost guard from the Twenty-third Regiment was close to the scene. Dowd was helped to his feet. He escaped with nothing more serious than a lump on the back of his head. The unprovoked attack from ambush occurred on the American side of the line and within a few hundred yards of it. This fact was regarded as all the more significant. The provost guard spread out in every direction in an effort to catch the assailant, but failed.

SQUATTERS STIRRED UP.

Feeling among the Mexican border squatters has grown more intense since the arrival of the militia, whose camps make a formidable array along the desert and foothills. Outposts from the Eighth Regiment yesterday reported an increase in the Mexican guard in the whitewashed adobe hut which has been the centre of Mexican activities since the Bay State troops reached their city of tents.

As a precaution the cossack supports have dug shallow trenches. It was decided today to provide outposts from battalions, the majors of which will select squads for daily outpost duty, instead of having the territory divided between regiments and under several commanders.

The rainy season has set in with a vengeance. The initial shower of Wednesday was surpassed yesterday afternoon by a young deluge, accompanied by blinding flashes of lightning and a thunder that sounded like German artillery. But with the rain has come a drop in temperature and cool, breezy evenings.

COOL ONLY BY COMPARISON.

It was such a big shift in temperature that one of the Boston militiamen supposed the mercury must have tumbled to seventy. He was dumfounded to learn from an official thermometer that it was 96, and he stopped growing. The Massachusetts soldiers will get a shower every day now.

General E. Leroy Sweetser's new border baths have become so popular all of a sudden that he is thinking of having the scheme patented. It consists of one set of the abbreviated underwear made famous by three letters of the alphabet, two pair of rubber boots and a broad grin. The jurist commander of the Seventh Massachusetts Brigade conceived the idea on the spur of the moment, like all great inventors, with the first drop of rain which kicked up the alkali dust exactly like Mexican bullets.

When General Sweetser strolled out in his near-aboriginal rig, his orderlies rubbed their eyes and thought it was Villa or Carranza in a truce, but as the General from Malden continued to stand like that statue in the band close to the Washington monument in the Public Garden, sentries and orderlies got wise and a war whoop went up from headquarters. Hundreds of the privates rushed into the rain in the "altogether" for a shower bath.

CHAPLAIN O'CONNOR MEETS HATED MEXICAN NOSE DRILLER

Have you ever heard tell of the Mexican "nose driller"? It has been known and listed for generations, but its pesky presence was discovered for the Bay State troops by the Rev. M. J. O'Connor, chaplain of the Ninth. Lieutenant William J. Dwyer of the Ninth Medical Corps, a skillful surgeon of Cambridge, calls it a "Mexican skunk." Father O'Connor thought it a cross between a rat and a weasel, and the censor would not permit us to tell the folks up north what the privates call the thing, even if their adjectives could be printed.

Chaplain O'Connor poked his big toe against something in the sand, and squirmy when he turned in last night. He hoped out and switched his pocket flight around like a naval search-light. He saw something the size of a rat leap and vanish. He thought of Mexican incarnations, and about everything but zebras, and tucked himself in and went to sleep. In the morning another visitor crawled out of one of his puttees.

"I began to think I had 'them,' and that during the sun had got me," said Father O'Connor. "But in the morning I had a better peep at the intruder."

"It was the size of a rat and quick as lightning. In fact, I was going to take a shot at it, but for fear that it might startle the camp to start the war in spite of the administration, and I am a peaceful man.

MEXICAN SKUNK.

"I called Dr. Dwyer. He made a study of Mexican vegetation and animal life. He told me that little animal was a Mexican skunk and that it had a habit of hiding into men's shoes while they slept. When he told me that, I wanted to borrow the artillery from Morningside Heights because I found a nest of them right near that starboard corner of my tent and another near that patch of mosquito grass."

Father O'Conner is one of the most resourceful men in the entire Infantry camp. While other officers from Boston were complaining of the heat that coated everything in their tents an inch thick he quietly turned mason. With a mop, buckets of wet dust and much scraping and slamping, he turned his dust floor into cement. Before this the Mexicans make their adobe houses out of that dust and he thought he would have a smooth floor until the carpenters had time to give him one of wood.

Chaplain O'Connor is tall and athletic. He was a crack centre in the Holy Cross eleven and a high jumper. He is as spry as a mountain goat, and is forever swinging from something for arm and chest exercise. During the five days in the Pullman he used the high plush backs of the seats as parallel bars and now he lifts himself into stunted border poplars.

He has been mistaken for Bob Fitzsimmons again, this time away down the Mexican border. Father O'Connor is a "ringer" for the former champ, but smaller in build. His height, complexion and hald spot remind one so much of Fitzsimmons that he tells us he has been asked many times if he wasn't the invincible Bob himself. Persons who failed to detect his clerical collar or saw him in campaign uniform.

"One day down at Old Orchard, in the surf, the word was passed that I was Bob Fitzsimmons," added the chaplain, "and would you believe it, they followed me up the beach and made me feel like a donkey!"

Father O'Connor has been voted by the Boston correspondents the "greatest sky pilot" on the Mexican border.

He had the carpenters rig an improvised confessional in his tent yesterday, but all sinners of Israel, and Irishmen, had confessed before the hour arrived.

WINTHROP GIRLS SEND THEIR GUN COMPANY SOME HOUSEWIVES

Mexia men tried today to have Worden Wood repeat his feat of last evening, in order to perpetuate on the film, but Imogene was ill. Imogene is the raw rag Corporal Wood bought for $21 the first day he landed.

The Mexican horse trader in pity threw in an outside saddle. Worden and his mesmerizing are now convinced that the questionable coat was Rudolfo $20, horse $1. Worden strode over to where Imogene stood with head bowed in front of El Paso's swellest hostelry.

The street was thronged. Soldiers and war correspondents swarmed the hotel show windows. Worden flung one leg over Imogene and Imogene staggered and went down in a heap in the gutter. Worden was going to carry her in his arms to the livery stable, but war correspondents acted as props until Imogene came to. Corporal Wood walked back to camp with Imogene trailing.

Corporal Wood and members of the Winthrop Machine Gun Company were cheered today by the arrival of "housewives" made and forwarded by patriotic young women in Winthrop. On the flaps that hold needles and pins each soldier had found written in ink the name of the donor, and if love affairs don't result then the boys of the Winthrop Gun Company lack romance, and they don't look it.

TROOP A MOVES CAMP.

Colonel Frank Graves of the Eighth Regiment said today that he and other regimental commanders would have relished larger camp space for rifle practice and manoeuvres so as not to "rush."

The Bay State troops have done wonders in a few days with the barren desert area allotted to them while helping to guard the border. Space is limited. At points the Massachusetts lines are scarcely 100 yards from the Mexicans.

Troop A of the Massachusetts cavalry was moved yesterday to a new camp site to the north of Fort Bliss, a mile from its first location. It is now brigaded with the regulars.

The wealthy aldens of Battery A had an exciting day of it. They captured two scorpions and a rattlesnake. After a "fierce" fight the "snake" were executed.

Major John D. Wentworth of the hospital company has established a daily "wash day" for the men of his command. Every man in the hospital outfit is compelled to wash his undershirt and socks every day.

The young rain, Adam, presented to the company by a Wellesley man, is thriving on the milk bottle. The cook, William Rimbeutal, feeds Adam and will allow nobody else to act as custodian of the mascot.

The hospital company men feel proud of the tenacity of their tent stakes. The signal company's tents were leveled last night for the second time since they were put up. The usually strong gales were back against the gales. But the hospital outfit say Lieutenant-Surgeon A. Andrews and Major Wentworth used their knowledge of yachting in rig "dead men's" supports of stone and held fast that defied even El Paso gales.

The Fifth, Eighth and Ninth Regiments performed evolutions and drills in the desert yesterday. It was the first joint manoeuvres since the arrival of the Massachusetts infantry on the border. Bayonet and setting-up exercises were held. It was warm work, but the men are rapidly becoming used to the tropical climate. It was all carried out within view of the Mexican outposts.

BAY STATE BOYS SEE MEXICANS FIGHTING JUST ACROSS BORDER

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

Camp Cotten, El Paso, July 7.—The Massachusetts boys got their first view of warfare when a running battle took place between two bands of Mexicans just across the border.

A fusillade of shots, sent by the Mexicans, electrified the entire camp. The "Efficient Eighth" seized the opportunity to live up to its nickname.

The regiment had just been given the honor of being the first to furnish an entire battalion for outpost duty, and Major Frank S. Elliott, commander of the First Battalion, immediately dispatched a detail to the border to reinforce the outposts who were members of I company of Lynn.

The detail was in charge of Lieutenant George R. Elliott of D Company, and consisted of Sergeant Harry F. Smith and eight men. While the remainder of the battalion was held under arms, and the entire brigade was astir at the edge of the camps watching, the detail doubled out to the boundary line and took station at the Fred Huntington, also a Harvard gridiron star, is having the time of his life studying the mineral, animal and insect life of the border. He is making a collection of lizards.

EVERY DAY IS WASH DAY.

Major John D. Wentworth of the hospital company, has established a daily "wash day" for the men of his command. Every man in the hospital outfit is compelled to wash his undershirt and socks every day.

The young rain, Adam, presented to the company by a Wellesley man, is thriving on the milk bottle. The cook, William Rimbeutal, feeds Adam and will allow nobody else to act as custodian of the mascot.

Father O'Connor has had many gifts of candy, but the gun makes paste of chocolate drops and cocoanuts are the most practicable boon here.

Lieutenant John W. Mahoney of Lawrence of the Third Battalion, Ninth Infantry, has been served as Father O'Connor's altar boy.

Private Joseph Lynch of D Company thought the whole Carranza army had suddenly surrounded him yesterday afternoon. He was sojourning an afternoon siesta in the midst of a tree when a rat, corraled as accompany mascot, dropped from above and clawed him on the cheek.

Joseph was full of battle in two minutes, but Tabby didn't wait for any argument.

FRAMINGHAM RECRUITS EAGER TO GO TO BORDER

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Whitney, Framingham, July 7.—Cheers by thoughts of breaking camp Monday and being hurried to the border for assignment to companies in the Second, Fifth, Eighth and Ninth Infantry, troops of cavalry and batteries of artillery, recruits attached to the First and Second Massachusetts Field Hospital and their mail today like an entirely different outfit.

Every one sees for himself a glorious opportunity to win fame in Mexico if trouble starts. All have waited anxiously for this opportunity, and now that official recognition has come, today's enthusiasm knows no bounds.

With the order came from the War Department to have the recruits to the border there was great rejoicing. Tents were struck with pen, pencil and paper to warn loved ones of a hasty go to and to bid them farewell dinner.

Behind the new gains over the faces of older recruits. The younger ones started all sort of queries concerning the "sights" they will see and the blazing climate. Those who appear to have had experience in Texas and Mexico were the lions of the camp.

Reasons as to why the recruits are wanted at the front spread thick and fast. One was that the ranks of the Massachusetts regiment are not up to the full military standard and it is necessary to fill vacancies caused by sick leave and special [illegible] and [illegible].

"We have firmly organized the new position.

"Southwest of Thiepval the enemy made a determined attack, but it was completely crushed. The enemy's artillery is very active in the region of Loos and the Hulluch salient. We have shelled enemy trenches and troop hostels and successfully exploded two mines at Aiehy and Hulluch.

"During the morning in certain sectors of the battlefield east of Albert we resumed a vigorous offensive, the attacks beginning at dawn. At the same time the Germans delivered heavy attacks in the region of Ancre.

"North of Fricourt fighting of the greatest violence is in progress, especially between Montauban and the Ancre, where attacks succeed attack. We have gained several important tactical successes in the vicinity of Ovillers, Labolselle and Contalmaison.

"North of Thiepval the enemy succeeded temporarily in occupying 300 yards of trenches."

Paris Reports Lull on French Front

By CHARLES F. HERTELLI, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 7.—A lull has settled down upon the infantry fighting in the Somme River front.

The French War Office, in an official communique today, states that only bombardments were in progress in that region last night.

On the Verdun front the Germans are still striving to smash the French lines and a continuance of gigantic proportions was in progress all night on both sides of the Meuse. The German gunners concentrated their fire east of the river on the French positions at Thiaumont, Fleury and Chenois wood.

During the lull in the infantry fighting north and south of the Somme, the French and British have taken advantage of the occasion to organize their new positions. In the meantime, however, they were subjected to a violent fire from German batteries.

The text of the official communique follows.

"The night passed quietly on the genuine.

"On the left bank of the Meuse there was an intermittent bombardment during the night.

"On the right bank the artillery battle became very violent in the region of Thiaumont Work and in the sectors of Fleury and Chenois Wood.

"In the Fleury region, this enemy launched a feeble attack about 4 o'clock in the evening against one of our trenches. He was immediately thrown back from our element where he had gained a footing. In the same sector a surprise attack executed perfectly by us was entirely successful. For a distance of 500 yards our grenade throwing troops produced a terrific havoc. We brought back some prisoners.

"German aviators yesterday dropped numerous bombs on the open town of Luxe. Eleven were killed and three wounded. All three times, with the exception of one wounded soldier, were women or children. An act of reprisal was immediately undertaken.

"On July 6 one of our bombarding squadrons successfully threw forty bombs upon the railway junctions at Metz and Sablons. On its return numerous combats were fought with German machines that violently brought back two German planes, which has been shot down, one near Maizeray, the other in the region of Lafflenmont."

Russians Strive to Surround Kolomea

By International News Service.

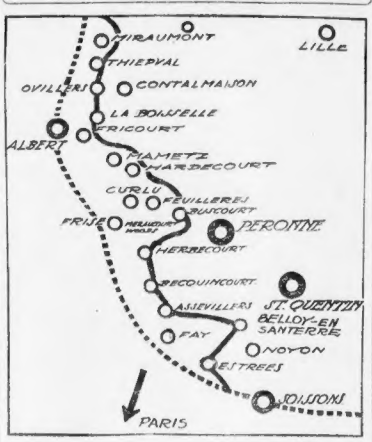
MAP showing recent gains made by the allies in their drive on the west front. Dotted line shows early positions and heavy line the present battle front.



WAR SUMMARY

After a lull of two days or more, terrific fighting broke out again today in Picardy, on the British-German front. On the lines held by the French there was a lull.

The British official statement records fighting centering in the sector running from Montauban through Contalmaison, La Boisselle, Ovillers and Thiepval to the Ancre Brook. The Germans prefaced this fighting with a heavy bombardment. In the British phrase, "attack succeeds attack."

The British took a thousand yards of trenches east of La Boisselle, while the Germans captured 300 yards of trenches north of Thiepval.

The region of the fighting is on the northeast angle of the salient thrust by the allies toward Peronne in recent fighting, and is an effort by the Germans to crush in that salient, and by the allies to widen and extend it. So far as the official bulletins thus far reveal, neither side has won any important advantage.

The Russians report further gains and the capture of thousands of prisoners. While Russian claims as to the number of prisoners taken cannot be credited, they are making slight but steady gains in a northwesterly direction along the Dneister River. They appear to have abandoned for the present the campaign southwestward toward the Carpathians, probably because the Austrian army at Czernowitz has escaped beyond pursuit, and are now fighting toward Lemberg, but they are nowhere within fifty miles of that fortress.

The Russians admit that a position they captured yesterday near Riga has been lost again to the Germans.

Admiral Jellicoe has issued his official report on the sea battle of Horn Reef. He adds nothing new to the known facts, sets the British losses, as before, at fourteen ships sunk, and says eleven others, including two superdreadnoughts, were gravely damaged. Of the British ships sunk three were battle cruisers—capital ships. He sets the German losses, without naming the ships, at three capital ships and twelve others, light cruisers, destroyers and a submarine.

His report, studied carefully, gives an excellent idea of the strategy of a modern sea battle, where ships manoeuvre in and out of range, seeking an opportunity to strike.

2 BIG BATTLES ON RUSSIAN FRONT

By International News Service.

Petrograd, July 7.—Two great battles are in progress in the Russian theatre of war, one in the region of Baranovitchi and the other west of Dvinsk, according to official reports issued today by the War Office. West of the Dvina river, however, the number of prisoners taken by the hands of the Russians has been increased to 200 officers and 7,411 men.

Following is the text of the official report:

"Along the Dniester river the number of prisoners in the hands of Russian troops has increased to 300 officers and 7,411 men. In that region we have taken 15 machine guns, 6 guns, 1,000 rifles, 2 searchlights, 11 bomb throwers and 17 ammunition wagons.

"In the region of Chernowitz, west of the Dniester river, there is respectful fighting. East of Seranoutch the enemy has delivered violent counter attacks, but all broke down under our fire.

"Operating the Austro-Hungarian line at Delatyn, west of Kolomea, the Russians have succeeded in cutting the railroad running between Galicia and Hungary. The Austrians despatched largely on this line supplies and troops arriving at Stanislau and before Tarnopol.

"The severing of the railroad is regarded as a severe blow to General von Bothmer and may force him to withdraw toward Lemberg. In their official statement, the Austrians admit the capturing of their lines at Delatyn and state they have retired to a point west of Stanislau.

According to the reviews, the Russians pressed on toward Kornonesen, Burkowce, occupying the village of Mikuschince, and imperilling the main line of the Austro-Hungarian army's retreat into Hungary.

U-Boat Sinks Unarmed British Merchant Craft

By International News Service.

London, July 7.—Demands in Germany for a resumption of the submarine campaign against allied shipping without restrictions appear to be having an effect of increasing activity on the part of the Teuton U-boats.

It was announced today that the British merchant steamer Gannet had been sunk by a submarine. The Gannet was an unarmed vessel. She displaced 1,127 tons and was built in 1876. Her home port was London.

A despatch from Berlin announced that the British steamer Lerwick has been captured near the English coast. This vessel was built in 1906, hails from Cork and displaces 1,334 tons.

According to the Berlin message, transmitted via Amsterdam, the German Admiralty says the Lerwick was taken by the German high seas forces. This would indicate, if true, that the German fleet or part of it had made another dash from port.

A Swedish paper says the Dutch schooner Nerlanden was attacked on Thursday by a submarine of unknown nationality and severely damaged.

REPUBLICANS TO FILIBUSTER ON SHIP BILL

By International News Service.

Washington, July 7.—Carefully laid Democratic plans to get members of Congress back to work on their political fences not later than the middle of August are in a fair way to be balked, it appeared today.

Prospects of extended filibusters in the Senate against the administration ship purchase bill and the $42,000,000 river and harbor appropriation bill forces Democratic leaders to revise their confident assertion that Congress would adjourn about August 20. The date of adjournment is now "indefinite." A Democratic caucus tonight will decide whether to press the shipping bill or not.

The Democratic leaders want to redeem the St. Louis platform pledge promising the ship bill to the country. The Republicans have delivered an ultimatum declaring that the bill should go over until the next session of Congress. Senator Gallinger, the Republican leader, stated the Republican position thus:

"If, for any reason the ship bill is to be taken up this session it will most certainly be debated at considerable length, not in the nature of a filibuster, unless unusual methods are resorted to by the majority, but for the purpose of having the country understand the nature and purpose of the proposed legislation."

The decision as to whether the Democrats will start a finish fight on the ship bill finally will rest with President Wilson.

BAY STATE ON GUARD TO KEEP OUT DREAD INFANT PLAGUE

stricken and are fleeing with their children out of the city.

In Baltimore the first death from infantile paralysis was reported today. A girl of two years was the victim.

Philadelphia reports two cases and every effort is being made there to prevent an epidemic.

In Chicago one child is dead and seven other cases have been reported. Trains are being watched there also.

Arkoudoula Marinoucs, the one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Marinoucs of No. 24 Penwich street, Lowell, after ailing a week, was examined by two doctors yesterday who gave what turned out later to be an erroneous diagnosis.

Today Dr. Marshall Ailing pronounced the illness a well developed case of infantile paralysis. The child's left arm hangs helpless with paralyzed nerves which, according to physicians, will not recover.

The sufferer is weak, but has shown remarkable powers of resistance.

The Board of Health has isolated the victim and will exert every possible effort to save the child's life.

State Health Commissioner Allan J. McLaughlin has just issued a statement declaring there was absolutely no cause for alarm in the State, as no epidemic existed. He said there were no signs that there would be any, but is himself on guard to prevent any outbreak. For that reason he has mobilized health boards in every city and town in the fight to ward off any spread of the disease within Massachusetts territory.

Last month there were ten scattered cases of the disease in the Bay State, but this, it is stated, is only the normal number.

So thorough is Dr. McLaughlin's campaign, put into force even before any official warning came from New York, that present isolated cases are being most rigorously treated.

ISSUES WARNING.

The only danger now, it is explained, is that the infection might find its way into the State through persons fleeing here from New York City.

To guard against this possibility Dr. Eugene R. Kelley, director of the division of communicable diseases, has, at the direction of Dr. McLaughlin, sent the following letter to every health authority in Massachusetts:

This department has been advised that there is a serious and rapidly-spreading epidemic of infantile paralysis in New York City. Many people are taking their children out of the city in order to avoid infection, and to this way the disease may spread to Massachusetts.

The Commissioner of Health thought it would be wise to warn you of this condition, in order that you might be on the lookout for any cases coming into your community. Cases particularly to any suspicious cases of children coming from New York City. If such cases are discovered it will be wise to establish a careful isolation and sanitary control.

There is no epidemic in Massachusetts. During June there were only ten cases reported in widely scattered places in the Commonwealth.

This department will be glad to assist your board in preventing the importation and spread of this infection. In case you desire assistance call your State district health officer or the central office.

STATE-WIDE VIGILANCE.

Special instructions have been sent to the heads of the eight health districts of the State to be on the lookout for any suspicious cases, particularly among persons coming into the State from New York City.

These districts are: Southeastern, in charge of Dr. Adam S. MacKnight of Fall River; Eastern, in charge of Dr. Merrill E. Champion of Wollaston; Northeastern, Dr. Lyman A. Jones, Swampscott; North Midland, Dr. Charles E. Simpson, Lowell; South Midland, Dr. William W. Walcott, Natick; Wachusett, Dr. Francis Finnegan, Fitchburg; Connecticut Valley district, Dr. John S. Richmond, Northampton; Berkshire, Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, North Adams.

"In addition to direct information from this office," said Dr. McLaughlin today, "the district health officers have been instructed to get in touch at once with all local health boards.

"The point we must emphasize now is PREVENTION. There is no cause for any alarm on the part of parents; no epidemic exists. Our labor now is to prevent such an outbreak.

"Inasmuch as there are many persons leaving New York city in order to get their children out of the zone of infection, and as some of these might come to this State, our work includes any and every possibility from such a fact. We are watching the Summer places, too, particularly the Berkshires and the Cape and other sections to which the New Yorkers might come. This is done simply as a precautionary measure.

ADDS NEW PERIL.

The epidemic in New York has now spread from Greater New York across the Hudson River to New Jersey and northward as well. Country districts which had been considered immune are now reporting many cases. The situation has become alarming on Long Island and on Staten Island.

Thousands of parents, alarmed by the spread of the disease, found themselves in a difficult position today. When they tried to secure accommodations in country towns and resorts in order to take their children from the danger they were informed that the children would be quarantined by this, scores took their children away without any definite idea of their immediate future.

The flight of panic-stricken families from New York city has added another peril to the situation. Among the children taken are some believed to have been already stricken with the disease. As a result physicians today advised those intending to leave the city to go by automobile as far as possible and avoid using trains in which the germs of the disease might be lurking.

Secretary McAdoo told Mayor Mitchel and Health Commissioner Emerson of New York that the resources of the United States Public Health Service were at the disposal of the city.

"This offer, coming at this time, means a great deal to us," said Mr. Emerson afterwards.

"We have gone the limit to prevent and control the disease. I have no confidence the epidemic is controlled. Experience with other epidemics shows that the present situation is likely to continue throughout the Summer. We must have the co-operation of every agency that we can enlist."

The problem New York wants to solve is this exceedingly difficult one:

"How is the fatal poliomyelitis germ transmitted from person to person? Who are the carriers? How long is the period of incubation? Are nurses and physicians carriers? How can the carriers be detected and controlled in order to check the epidemic?"

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

How to Detect and Prevent Spread of Infantile Paralysis

New York, July 7.—Dr. C. Baldwin, Director of Public Education of the Health Department, and Dr. Simon Flexner, Director of the Rockefeller Institute, explained today how to detect symptoms of infantile paralysis and how to ward off the disease and prevent its spread.

HOW TO DETECT IT.

The first symptoms are fever, bowel disturbances, headache and irritability.

After a few hours, pains develop, usually in the lower part of the legs and in the feet.

Sometimes there are also pains in the region of the spine, in the arms and neck—stiff neck.

Within twelve hours, the patient is unable to move his arms or legs and sometimes cannot talk.

Vomiting, delirium, twitchings and convulsions accompany the progress of the disease.

A temperature of from 100 to 106 degrees lasts two or three days.

Sometimes, but rarely, the patient has chills, sore throat and skin eruptions.

Health is no protection. Often children go to bed apparently well and awake in the night with the first symptoms and are partly paralyzed by morning.

HOW YOU MAY AVOID CONTRACTING IT.

Cleanliness is the only known preventive.

The isolation of children in the house is next in importance.

Have children wash their hands and faces often.

Avoid buying candy, ice cream and fruits which are eaten without being cooked, from peddlers and storekeepers who are not careful of their wares.

Don't kiss children on their mouths.

Keep their noses clean. This applies especially to young babies.

Dont cough in their faces.

Protect them from flies.

The germs of this disease, which are so small that they cannot be seen with microscopes and which pass through germ filters, almost always enter the bodies of their victims through the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

HOW TO AVOID SPREADING IT.

Keep children away from their mates in the streets or at moving picture shows.

Report all cases at once to the Board of Health, so that the city's doctors can immediately investigate and remove the patients to hospitals.

Adults are not free from the disease. If your hands are dirty, or if you are not careful about the preparation of your children's food, remember that you can give your little ones the disease as readily as can outsiders.

ORPET SCORES AGAIN IN LIFE BATTLE

By International News Service.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—The first move of the prosecution in its rebuttal testimony today in the trial of Will Orpet for the murder of Marian Lambert accomplished to be the most bitter struggle of the trial.

It culminated, after the defence rested its case, in bring Orpet back on the stand to undergo more extended examination. The motion was decided in Judge Gould's favor. The prosecution, before the motion was made, in a sudden swing, as usual when threatening the accused, the name of Celestia Youker, the girl for whom the State says Orpet killed the little Lambert girl, was mentioned.

Mrs. Marguerite Youker, sister of Dorothy Mann and sister-in-law of Celestia Youker, was called as the first rebuttal witness. When the defence got up to cross-examine direct examination it brought forth the whole story of the State's attempt to decoy a confession of guilt from Orpet through a letter Celestia Youker was forced to write to him.

The defence fought out these points. Then Attorney Jesley went to Celestia Youker with a typewritten document on May 3 and forced her to copy it as a letter to Will Orpet; that this was done in the presence of the witness; that she participated in the "arrangement" to betray a confession from the boy then locked in the jail at Waukegan; that she came to Washington in company with the witness and Joslyn and his son; that there was a conference in a room in the Washburn Hotel, and that she, Mrs. Youker, carried Celestia's letter to Orpet in jail and received his reply—which was then read in the presence of Celestia Youker and the counsel for the prosecution.

The club that was used to compel Orpet's confession into demanding a confession from him was admitted to be the letter she wrote to Orpet—then in the possession of the State.

PROBE HOSPITAL DEATH ON WIFE'S CHARGES

Dr. Michael J. O'Meara, chairman of the State Board of Insanity, announced today that he would make a personal investigation of the death of Charles S. Winne of Winthrop, an architectural draftsman, at the Westboro State Hospital.

Mrs. Winne asked for the investigation, charging that her husband had been brutally treated at the hospital and that three of his ribs were broken. The hospital authorities said Winne died of general paresis.

Dr. O'Meara in a public today the following excerpt from a report which he declared Dr. H. D. Spalding, superintendent of the Westboro Hospital, made three days before Winne's death on July 3:

This patient has been disturbed and excited for some time. He has been throwing himself about the ward, grappling with patients and attendants, wrestling and scuffling with them.

There were no marks or bruises on his body, nor any sign of the loss of the patient. The fractured ribs were discovered by Dr. Sheley while making a routine examination of the patient, as was his custom. The family were then notified.

Dr. Sheley on the preceding day had made a report in which he said he had observed Winne rolling around on the floor of his room, upsetting the bed and standing it on end. Winne refused to sleep in the bed and I had to take it out.

O'Meara said an autopsy was performed on Winne's body, and those present at the autopsy were Dr. Charles S. Knight, medical examiner, Dr. Fuller, pathologist at Westboro; Dr. Canavan, assistant pathologist of the State Board of Insanity, and other hospital officials.

SEEK 3 WOMEN IN PEABODY TRAGEDY

are female outfit received in the parcel.

Soon after the grand jury hearing was beginning the police were seeking three more women, one the wife of a wholly former West End physician, others relatives.

GROUP OF WITNESSES.

The witnesses could easily be divided into two groups.

In one group could be placed the three persons, seven men and three girls, against whom the police have brought charges of being accessories to illegal medical treatment.

The second group:

Former State Representative Charles H. Tremblett, a Peabody lawyer.

James O'Connell of Pleasant street, Lynn, brother of Charles.

William Conlin of Beaver street, Salem.

Daniel J. Jilleon of No. 197 Boston street, Salem.

George Martwell, described as of the U. S. S. Kearsarge, but said by officers of that vessel not to be on it recently.

Thomas J. Seaton of Peabody, owner and driver of the touring car in which Margaret Ward, dead or dying, was driven from Roxbury to her mother's home on Boston street, Salem, early last Wednesday morning.

Dr. John J. Monahan of Peabody, who was called after the police and men were taken in custody.

Emma Fields, nineteen years of age, No. 42 Warren street, Roxbury. The police say she had or during girl's stay at the home made from the 1900 bars of her address.

Geraldine Orchard, sixteen-year-old sister of Rhoda, same address. Speaking to the only juvenile, from a legal standpoint, who has been taken into. She is one of the first, if not the very first, girl of juvenile age to be under charge of accessory in the case of a case that the Boston police have known.

Marjorie Stewart, twenty-four, of No. 42 Warren street, Roxbury.

POLICE WITNESSES.

The police witnesses are:

City Marshal Buckingham and Inspector Bellerive of the Salem police; Captain Herbert W. Gonyea and Sergeant Frank Lucas of the Lynn police.

spectors Waite and Hennessy of Boston.

Suffolk and Essex Counties were represented by Medical Examiner Magrath of the former and by Medical Examiner Atwood of the latter, who performed the autopsy on Margaret Ward's body.

Other witnesses were summoned today, in addition to a previous attempt to engage an automobile, to appear before the grand jury.

One of these witnesses is E. Burton Nichols of Everett. He was summoned District Attorney Pelletier last week. Tuesday evening he received a telephone message from Mr. Pelletier, but could not get in touch with him until later. Nichols declined to be interviewed.

The other witness in this point is a telephone operator, who was also summoned to testify regarding the call Nichols received.

PELLETIER ASKS AID.

After the inquest before District Attorney Pelletier, through the courtesy of the newspapers, asked the newspapers to print for him a request to the public to aid him, if possible, in locating Mrs. Benjamin H. Fitfield, one of the two Fitfield girls who were arrested, along with Dr. Mary Hilliard, at Salem.

The District Attorney said that Mrs. Fitfield was seen at the South Station, Boston, on Wednesday, July 5, at 8:30 a.m. She carried a suit case. Mrs. Fitfield (who is the wife of John N. H. Sim was the wife of — Fitfield. But they were divorced on May 5, 1916, and Mrs. Sim also allowed the custody of the girl, Rhoda, to Mrs. Fitfield. Mr. Sim is now living at Swampscott, Mass. The mother lives at one time at No. 313 Broadway, Everett.

The latest development was in determining whether Mrs. Ward died before or after the operation. Mrs. Ward was taken to the automobile in which she was driven from the house by Dr. Warren Brett Hathaway, whom the police charge the illegal operation, and died before reaching Beth Israel Hospital. The autopsy was performed. The police are inclined to believe that the woman died at 1:45 on Tuesday.

BOLD NEW WARRANT.

Medical Examiner and Medical Examiner Magrath spent most of Wednesday in Salem, where the girls were arraigned in the municipal court. Medical Examiner Magrath went to the office of the District Attorney's office and at the conference Mr. Pelletier announced that he would try the case before the Grand Jury today.

He stated that it is not determined that the illegal surgery was responsible for the death of Miss Ward. It could be found upon examination of that canary and the prisoners now being held in Boston would be rearraigned and prosecuted there.

The Ward case, however, is now on the case and it is said that it will prove sensational. Medical Examiner Atwood of Essex County will make a brief report of his autopsy findings today, but it will be a year before the chemical analysis and microscopic examinations (found will be made).

HUNT "MASTER MIND."

The police today were busy gathering evidence against the so-called "master mind," which they expect was back of the tragedy, when ever Mrs. Ward died, or by her life.

City Marshal Harrington of Salem, a tentative plan for four bodies in the Ward case, which he has been working out a greater part of the day, and with the utmost detail and secrecy. He claimed that he had evidence against the "master mind" of the various attempts to have every body, except the one in the death of Miss Ward, cremated. He said that Dr. Hathaway was arraigned on the charge of manslaughter in the death of Miss Ward, he was held in $2,000 for a hearing July 15, the date set for the hearing in the cases of the other six defendants.

M'CALL TO KEEP EYE ON FOOD AT CAMP

Governor McCall will personally inspect the food supplied the Bay State recruits at Camp Whitney again late this afternoon.

Announcing his intention to visit Camp Whitney during the day, Governor McCall said:

"I will leave the State House about 4:15 o'clock, so as to arrive at Camp Whitney about 6:30 o'clock, in time for the evening mess. I intend to look over the kitchens and to have a look at the food that is being served there.

"When asked if additional complaints had been received by my office in regard to the food, Governor McCall answered: "Things seem to be quite satisfactory. I have not received any unfavorable complaint, but nothing of a serious nature. I thought it best, however, to keep in close personal touch with the situation."

Governor McCall declared his belief that Congress should immediately make the big appropriation bill to provide relief for the dependent families of troopers who have joined the National Guard. He outlined on the troubles: "It is the duty of the country to provide for those funds," the Governor said.

He sent a telegram asking Senator Lodge to attend to the bill.

Governor McCall plans destination, but will go again unannounced. Other trips have been made the subject of "small-time" controversy, started today. "I have not been unconfused, face to face, to any citizen of Massachusetts," he said, "that a special session should be called. I will call a special session, but not until it seems necessary, but not until that time. There has been no need for it. I am not in favor of it, and wanted to make myself a little wet Governor.

Autoist Loses License for Year on Drink Charge

The first penalty under the new and drastic automobile laws was enacted today when the Massachusetts Highway Commission revoked the auto license of Zelina C. Small of Deanna, who was convicted of operating his car while under the influence of liquor.

The new law became effective last Saturday.

Small will lose his license for at least one year. Under the old law the Highway Commission could restore it to him at the end of sixty days.

He was convicted in court at Barnstable on Monday and paid a fine of $100. The court warrant was received by the Highway Commission today.

"Bull" Durham Being Shipped in Carload Lots to Mexican Border for Use of United States Troops

From seasoned campaigner to newest "rookie," practically every American soldier "rolls his own" with "Bull" Durham.

This famous tobacco is part of the U. S. trooper's regular "rations." It goes with him into far corners of the world. It's the smoke of the Service in barracks, camp and field.

Wherever the flag flies, from Maine to the Philippines, from Alaska to Mexico, you'll find Uncle Sam's fighting men "rolling their own" with "Bull" Durham.

Every month hundreds of thousands of sacks of "Bull" Durham are supplied to the American troops in Mexico and along the border.

"Bull" Durham was selected by the Government for the use of the army years ago, because it stood every test to which the most rigid inspection could subject it.

The absolute purity of "Bull" Durham is known to every commissary chief, every quartermaster, every officer and every soldier. They know that it's pure tobacco—pure golden Virginia-Carolina leaf—mild, sweet, satisfying—the most refreshing smoke in any climate and under any conditions.

GENUINE "BULL" DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

The "Bull" Durham army is an army of men who do things—active, virile, sturdy men in every walk of life. They "roll their own" with "Bull" Durham for the satisfaction it gives them to make for themselves, to their own liking, the liveliest of cigarettes—the smoke of personality and punch.

Learn to "roll your own" with "Bull" Durham—it's easy.

FREE An illustrated Booklet, showing correct way to "Roll Your Own" Cigarettes, and a package of cigarette papers, will both be mailed, free, to any address in United States on request. Address "Bull" Durham, Durham, N. C.

SECOND BATHER IS KILLED BY SHARK

By International News Service.

Spring Lake, N. J., July 7.—While hundreds of Summer visitors on the beach and in the South End Pavilion looked on helpless, Charles Bruder, a bellboy in one of the farmer beach-front hotels, was attacked by a shark and before help could arrive lost both of his legs. He died ten minutes after he was brought to shore.

Bruder had gone 100 feet or more beyond the life lines when he was heard to cry out the water about him was red with blood. The guards launched a boat and were at his side in a short time.

The two guards pulled Bruder into a boat and brought him to shore. They gave first aid while waiting for a physician, but he died within ten minutes.

Examination of the body disclosed the fact that the shark had bitten Bruder in the left side before taking his legs off. There was a deep bite below his left arm.

This is the second case of the kind reported on the New Jersey coast within the past week.

9,000,000 Boots for Slavs.

London, July 7.—Great Britain is now making 9,000,000 pairs of boots for the Russian army. By the request of the Russian government, they're to be stamped "Made in England" in Russian characters.

Protest Made on Merry-Go-Round in Franklin Park

The proposal to let the privilege of running a merry-go-round at Franklin Park was condemned at a meeting held by the Dorchester Board of Trade.

As a result of the meeting, a letter will be sent to Mayor Curley, asking for a public hearing to allow citizens opposed to "this desecration" of the park to express their disapproval of the plan.

"If this measure is allowed to go through, it will be only a short time before our park system will be given over to African dodgers and fakirs," said Raymond P. Delano, the president of the board.

"We would not oppose a suggestion to install a municipal merry-go-round for the free use of the children, but we are unalterably opposed to the commercialization of our park system."

HUTCHINS WOULD BE GOVERNOR IN N. H.

Concord, N. H., July 7.—John C. Hutchins of North Stratford, a former State Senator, announces he will be a candidate for the nomination for Governor. Hutchins is a prominent supporter of Senator Hollis. He ran for the Governorship nomination two years ago and was defeated by Albert W. Noone of Peterborough by two votes. Noone is expected to be a candidate for renomination.

DESERTED WIFE OF WYLIE ASKS DIVORCE

By International News Service.

Washington, July 7.—Another chapter in the Hichborn-Wylie social tragedy that made Washington society several years ago was written here when Mrs. Katherine Wylie, the deserted wife of Horace Wylie, filed suit for absolute divorce, naming Mrs. Philip Hichborn, Jr.

Mrs. Wylie's action was unexpected, it had been understood she had decided not to give the man who deserted her and eloped with Mrs. Hichborn in December, 1910, his freedom. Even the reported birth of a child to the fleeing couple failed for a long time to shake her determination.

SON URGED MOVE.

It is said by friends that the appeals of her son, Andrew, finally induced her to take her present step.

It is set forth in the bill, however, that she applied for a divorce so that in the event of her death, Horace Wylie will have no parental authority over their four children. Mrs. Wylie asks absolute control of the children, and states that at present she does not know the whereabouts of her husband.

Corroboration is given of the story that in 1911 Horace Wylie came to America and effected a "final reconciliation" with his wife. The agreement was said to be that if after six months Mr. Wylie still cared for Mrs. Hichborn he should return to her.

LEFT HER SUDDENLY.

Mrs. Hichborn was understood to be living with her sister, Mrs. Von Stumm, wife of a German diplomat, in Berlin. Suddenly Washington rang with the news that Horace Wylie had again deserted his wife and children.

In her bill Mrs. Wylie alleges Mr. Wylie had left her suddenly on September 24, 1911, leaving a "message to the effect that the separation from her was final and he must go back to live permanently" with the other woman.

Mr. Wylie and Mrs. Hichborn have been reported as living in Paris.

Philip Hichborn, Jr., committed suicide in Washington on March 27, 1912, in the home of his sister, Mrs. Paul Pearsall. The child Mrs. Hichborn left in her flight, Philip Hichborn, Jr., has been legally adopted by his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Pearsall.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 7.—Director of Safety William F. Sooy has given the police orders that beginning with next Sunday they shall see that all noisy amusements in the city are closed on the Sabbath.

CHARGE TWO WITH SMUGGLING CHINESE

Charged with conspiracy to aid and abet in landing in the United States a Chinese person not lawfully entitled to enter the country, Tryve Nelsen and Carl Sternberg, members of the crew of the fruit steamer Honduras, were arrested by Deputy Marshals Backus and Bradley. It is alleged the two men concealed Chin Yun on the vessel with the idea of smuggling him into the country when the ship landed in Boston.

BOY OF 9 SENT TO JAIL IN CIVIL CASE

Worcester, July 7.—Philip Bordeau, nine, son of Joseph Bordeau, has been taken to the County Jail because his parents were unable to procure bail for him in a civil case alleging assault. The case may not be tried for several months and the boy must remain in jail until then or furnish bail. His parents declare they know of no way of getting the required $200 surety.

Huge Order of Hardtack.

As a result of a contract for 1,000,000 pounds of hardtack for troops on the border has been let here, it was announced today. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Pyramid Iron that they offer to forfeit $100 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who looks iron and increase their strength 25% per cent, or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no certain organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

Washington, July 7.—General debate on the Democratic revenue bill held the attention of the House for more than six hours, following the adoption of a special rule for a vote on the measure next Monday afternoon.

Killed in French Army.

Pittsfield, July 7.—Joseph Monet, eighteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Monet of Watson street, has been killed in battle in France.

WEDS SOLDIER BY AID OF U. S. MAIL

New York, July 7.—Miss Ethel Maud Sergeant of Newark and Private Louis Bassenge of the First Regiment, now at Douglas, Ariz., seem to have solved their problem of wedding by proxy by using the mails.

A contract of marriage has been signed by Miss Sergeant and is now on its way to the regimental headquarters.

When the couple first decided to be wed by proxy Chuck Frank, Grocery of the Newark Marriage License Bureau declared in favor a permit unless both parties appeared.

So a lawyer drew up a contract stating that legal consensus had been reached. Miss Sergeant affixed her signature today, and after Bassenge does likewise the document will be returned for filing at the City Hall.

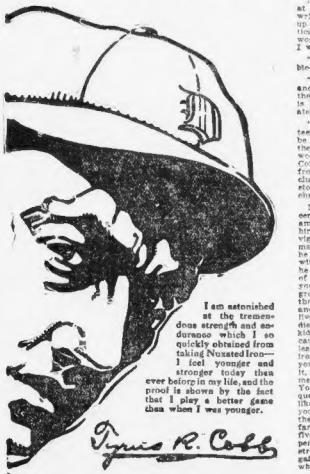
Batting Eyes of Ty Cobb, Super-man Greatest Baseball Player, Tells How Nuxated Iron Gave Him New Life

This great giant of strength and endurance says he now plays a better game than when he was younger.

Physician explains why taking Nuxated Iron gave Ty Cobb such tremendous strength and vitality after he was so weakened and all "rundown"—says it will often increase the strength and power of delicate, nervous folks 200 percent in two weeks' time.



I am astonished at the tremendous strength and endurance which I so quickly obtained from the use of taking Nuxated Iron—I feel younger and stronger today than ever before in my life, and the proof is shown by the fact that I play a better game than when I was younger.

Tyrus R. Cobb

New York, N. Y.—When interviewed in his apartment at Bretton Hall, Ty Cobb said: "Hundreds of people write to me to know how I gain and what I do to keep up that force and vitality which enables me to play practically every day of the entire baseball season. They wonder why I can play a better game to-day than when I was younger.

"The secret is keeping up the supply of iron in my blood—exactly what everyone else can do if they will.

"At the beginning of the present season I was nervous and run down from a bad attack of tonsilitis, but soon the papers began to state 'Ty Cobb has come back.' He is hitting up the old article.' The secret was iron—Nuxated Iron filled me with renewed life.

"Now they say I'm worth $50,000 a year to any baseball team, yet without plenty of iron in my blood I wouldn't be worth five cents. Nuxated Iron supplies that 'stay there' strength and vim that makes men of mark and women of power. Continuing, Dr. Sauer said: "Mr. Cobb's case is only one of hundreds which I could cite from my own personal experience which proves conclusively the astonishing power of nuxated iron to restore strength and vitality, even in most complicated chronic conditions.

"Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 10 he was in bad health; at 40 he was careworn and nearly all in. Now—at 50—a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with good health and youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved, who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the fight, while many another has gone to ignominious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M. D.

A good batter must be in prime physical condition—he needs a cool head, a quick eye and tremendous strength to put the swing behind the bat.

Ty Cobb is undoubtedly the greatest baseball player in the history of the game. A short time ago he was exhausted and all "run-down"—to-day he is a miracle of strength and endurance, due to filling his blood with plenty of iron. He says Nuxated Iron has given him new life and renewed energy and put the old-time vim and vigor of youth into his blood.

NOTE—Pyramid Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy. It is one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the other inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach, on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Pyramid Iron that they offer to forfeit $100 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who looks iron and increase their strength 25% per cent, or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no certain organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

Luck ? Chance ? Or a Certainty!

THESE are the days when the odds and ends of shot-to-pieces stocks hit the price toboggan—when you are invited to save money(!) on goods that no one has yet shown any desire to buy—and when manufacturer's mistakes that have been hawked from coast to coast and failed to stay sold are given fictitious values and put on parade as "tremendous bargains."

Undoubtedly there are some men who like to take a chance—who find pleasure in trying their luck. If you are such a man and have the money to spare, we say "go ahead and gamble."

But we believe that most men take their clothes-buying a little more seriously. We believe that you want certainty in fit, fabric, fashion and satisfaction, rather than to buy on a basis of "maybe it will do and maybe I can save a little money."

We believe you would rather come to a store where service is kept pretty close to 100% right the whole year round—where a full range for choice can be had in July as well as in April—where such fine, high-grade garments as

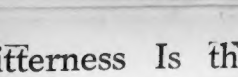
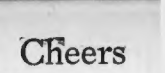
Bitterness Is the Chaser That Is Usually Dealt Out After the Jolt That Cheers



BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS



Sox in Third Position After the Indians Again

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

With one game tucked away and by it getting into third place in the standing, the opening contest upon the return of the World Beaters to Fenway Park can be said to have been a grand success. The game was of the kind the fans will go a few miles to see. Plenty of hitting, brilliant fielding, the opposing team coming from what looked to be a defeat into a tie score through the offices of Tris Speaker, and then the rally which put the run over to win.

The Champions are apparently getting their eye on the ball, and if this proves true they will gain steadily from now until they take the road again for the West. The infield is much stronger as it stands today than at any time this season. Jack Barry is playing as good ball as he ever did, and his hitting is timely. Jack made a couple of stops and throws in the game that were as cleverly executed as any seen for many a season. He covers a lot of ground and has got back into his stride, being able to throw from any angle.

LOTS OF LIFE.

Scott is full of life and seems to be able to get the step with Barry. He, too, appears to be in line for a few hits. He got one and was robbed of another by a wonderful play pulled by Chapman, who speared a line drive one hand over his head.

With second base so successfully guarded and "Hobby" and Gardner playing the kind of ball they have, and with Hooper, Lewis and Walker on their toes all the time the team resolves itself into a proposition of pitching.

Just now there appears to be considerable unsteadiness about the staff. Since his "no-hit-no-run" game Foster hasn't been in true form and Shore doesn't look any too good, but Carrigan Mays and Leonard with Gregg to come so that by the time Foster and Shore are called upon they may be ready.

SYMPTOM OF CONFIDENCE.

There is one thing certain. With Manager Carrigan back in the game, his suspension having been raised, there will be a return to confidence on the part of the players. Then there is Heinie Wagner to give the men the benefit of his knowledge, and that is much. Little Boye on the team have great confidence in Heinie, and his presence helps a lot.

The team being in third place is also a thing that should prove helpful to its favor. These Indians are a hard crowd to beat at any time. They have the feeling that they are the best there is in the league, and have absorbed the fighting spirit from Tris Speaker, who is going like a wild Indian. They have some good fielders and there are dangerous men in the lineup from the hitting point of view.

During this series there should be plenty of the kind of ball game on Thursday. Each team will be keen and eager to get the jump, realizing that the season is just about half over, and the final drive is not so far away as it might be. The Western clubs, with the exception of the Athletics, only have improved greatly since they were here on the first trip, and there is no telling what the Tygers may do when they get here. They have the faculty of coming to life the moment they reach this city, so down the line through the Western clubs means plenty of hard work to hold the lead or position now acquired.

FANS FOR SOX.

While the fans are with Tris in his effort to lead the league there was an evidence that they didn't care particularly for his doing things against the Red Sox. In other words the fans are pulling for the Champions to repeat, and they are in earnest about it. The crowd that witnessed the game was huge for the opening week, and there will be a record turnout outpouring to support the home team and on Saturday when the Athletics come still the club to be beaten.

Which Leonard was warned for not up during the latter part of the game. It is very likely that Manager Carrigan will send him to the mound today with Cady doing the catching. Cavaleski is likely to be the choice of the Indians with O'Neil behind the bat.

SOX NOTES

IN third place. Let the good work go on.

PASSING Hooper for Barry was a clever bit of fast infield work and entitled to decorate the countenance of Manager Fohl.

SHORE'S hit to the ninth that went foul was certainly a tough-luck drive.

MANAGER BILL CARRIGAN had planned to dress after the club meeting, but the telegram from President B. B. Johnson, lifting his suspension was most welcome.

TURNER is expected to join the Cleveland club in New York, as is Gould, a young pitcher.

PITCHER SHOUP, the young Chicago amateur, has been sent to Davenport, Iowa.

SPEAKER was given a royal reception when he came in bat for the first time, following Lewis' great try for Wambsganss' double.

WITH Wambsganss on third in the ninth and Speaker on first, Tris tried to work the double steal, but it went wrong. Foul holding Wambsganss on the last record. Tris struck out easily. "Hobby" made a nice catch of Roth's high foul, relieving Speaker a lot.

BARRY'S two steps and throws in the fifth were about as classy as any seen this season. He robbed Chapman and Gardner of hits and saved some runs.

CHAPMAN was a bunch of live wire throughout the game.

SCOTT handled a hot line drive by Gould nicely and his play on Wambsganss was neat.

SCOTT hit the ball on the seam in the sixth, but Chapman went up, pocketing it with his gloved hand for a put-out.

THE Champions appear to have their eye on the ball. With some hitting and flashy and Scott helping the attack, the team should climb during its home stay.

Saturday Afternoon, July 8, at 2:30 p. m.—The motor cycle races scheduled for July 4 will be run off at Readville. In addition to the stellar list of riders booked to appear the following who showed their speed at Springfield July 4 will help make the card exciting: Hatches, Monte Dunn will be 3rd, Parkhurst, Fresh Wetherbee, Ralph Hepburn and Ralph Hepburn. Track stands up to 100 miles still the club to be beaten.

Amateur Title Plans Made Public

Harry L. Ayer, president of the Massachusetts Golf Association, has announced that the annual amateur championship of the association will be held at Wollaston, July 19 to 22 inclusive. Amateur golfers resident in Massachusetts and members of clubs holding membership in the M. G. A. are eligible to compete.

Interest in the prospects an eighteen-hole qualification will be held on Wednesday, the opening day, with the last thirty-two scorers to compete on the first round on Thursday. Inasmuch as Francis Ouimet, the present titleholder, will not compete there will certainly be a new champion for the year 1919.

On Thursday and Friday they qualifiers will engage in two rounds of match play, each day, and on Saturday the first round in thirty-six holes will be played. The winner receives a gold medal, the runner up a silver medal and the two runners up bronze medals.

Entries will close with H. L. Ayer but later than noon of July 15. The players must make their entries through the secretaries of their several clubs. As a result of the condition which calls for a player being a resident of the association another argument regarding the status of Jesse Guilford will arise. The league that brought Guilford is a bona fide member of the association, as is still a resident of New Hampshire.

10 Days, Not Life, Is Suspension Allotted Evers

THE Braves will only be minus the services of Captain Johnny Evers for ten days as a result of the ruling from the office of President John K. Tener of the National League.

With the Trojan's suspension expiring July 15, it means he will be back in the game Sunday, July 16, when the Braves will be showing in Cincinnati.

President Tener sent the following telegram to Evers at Chicago, where the Braves open today, in reply to his message of apology:

"Your apology acceptable to me personally. Your suspension will terminate 15th inst."

HERZOG NAMED IN DEAL

Reds' Manager, at Odds with Cincinnati Stockholders, Due to Join Cubs, Says Report.

Chicago, July 7.—Rumors were afloat in Chicago today that a deal shortly may be put over which will bring Charley Herzog, present manager of the Reds, to the Cubs.

According to these rumors Herzog is tired of his Cincinnati berth and in desirous of getting away.

Friction with the Red stockholders is said to be the principal cause of Herzog's dissatisfaction.

In the event the deal goes through the story says that Hal Chase will take up the managerial reins over the Reds.

Wiley Out with Formula to Lose Didier

In order to offset Leon Didier's famous "jump," George Wiley, the diminutive Syracuse flyer, has planned a new line of attack which he will put into effect in the Brassard and hour motor-paced race at the Revere Cycle Track tomorrow night.

Wiley plans to get the "jump" himself and then eat out a terrific pace, so that Didier will be left if he successful remains to be seen. To date Didier has never been beaten in the 25 straight six heats at the Beach by any.

Wiley believes that if he can "break" Didier's hobby he will have the Frenchman beaten hands down. He claims he has nothing to fear from Victor Linart in the early miles, as the Belgian never was a match for wind starter.

Wiley sent on taking the Brassard away from Didier. So is Linart, for that matter, and, as for Didier, he is just as confident as ever. He claims he will retain his grip on the prized stake.

A well-balanced card of amateur and professional events will precede the big race.

WHITE SOX SIGN SEMI-PRO STAR

Chicago, July 7.—Colen Wright, the sensational young shortstop of the White Giants of the City League, has been signed by the White Sox. Injuries to McMullen and Terry made it necessary for the Sox to get some one, so Rowland picked Wright, who had been recommended to him earlier in the season.

The youngster has never had any professional experience, but has made his first year among the big semi-pros. He is twenty-four years old, weighs about 160 pounds and bats right-handed.

EVANS TO DEFAULT WESTERN HONORS

Chicago, July 7.—Of the 111 golfers entered in the Western Amateur championship meet, to be held at the Del Monte Golf and Country Club, beginning July 12, only five are from clubs east of Salt Lake City. The entries closed today, and all but four did not include Charles Evans, the champion.

Cricket Notes

THE best team (with the exception of the Australians) that visited the State League did not show up to much advantage against the Rhode Islanders in their initial match. It is apparent that they were off in batting as their score of 25 will show.

LOCAL followers of the game will be able to make their selections of three games in greater Boston tomorrow, two at Franklin Field and a match between the Wanderers and East Boston. The other three games are scheduled away.

UNITED SHOE MACHINERY (White) pulls out Brockton against Carlbeans and it looks like easy pickings for the champions, who have not suffered a defeat this season owing to the great bowling of Fox and Hall.

WEST INDIAS will entertain the United Shoe Machinery (Red) at Franklin Field and a closely contested game will be the result. The former team has not shown to good advantage this season and is about due to retrieve itself in the second half of the schedule interesting.

ST. GEORGES start the second half with Sewells as their opponents at Wood Island Park. This will be the first clash of these teams owing to the game with the Crescents in the first half. If St. Georges does not register a win against them they should throw up the sponge.

AT Franklin Field the Wanderers will entertain Cantons, the latter's game with that Salisbury team in dispute and will be out for revenge. Cantons, however, are a fighting aggregation playing consistent cricket and may carry off the honors.

STANDARDS' game with Needham has been transferred to the latter's grounds, where Meyers will make the going hard. The latter will fight to retain its position as runners up in the series where they are only one game between the champions with whom they have two games to play.

Ban Johnson Has Ideas on the Bean Ball

Chicago, July 7.—Ban Johnson, chief consulting physician of our national pastime, came to bat today with a suggestion which he believes will go far towards pursuading the advertising pitcher against the use of the "bean ball." There has been much complaint against the practice this season.

Johnson's idea is to give a hit batter two bases instead of the one to which he is entitled. At present he is entitled. "I am loath to believe," replied Mr. Johnson, "that any player would deliberately injure another, but there seems to be a growing belief that pitchers are resorting to throwing balls at a player's head in order to frighten him or drive him away from the plate. It must stop."

AMERICAN NINES IN BIG CLASH SUNDAY

Sunday will be a gala day at Peddock's Island, when some of the shining lights of the Advertising Department of the AMERICAN clash with the Bookkeeping and Auditing Departments in a big baseball game. There will be a number of former baseball stars on both teams, and the interest in the result of the game is the one of the AMERICAN'S annual outings.

W. F. Maloney, of no-run fame, and Jack Farren will be the battery for the Advertising Dept., while O'Neill, the old Chicago pectsider, and "Red Bert" Tucker will be the battery for the pen pushers. Tucker, who only weighs over 200 pounds, has a delivery that any pitcher of some when he blocks the plate will be a big handicap to batters.

BANNED AMATEURS WILL LOSE PRIZES

The United States Golf Association has sent out the following notice, which, under the condition clause, will be enforced:

"All players whose amateur status has been forfeited under the rules of the U. S. G. A. are ineligible to compete in amateur tournaments and should any such player be permitted to enter an amateur tournament a protest filed with the executive committee of this association could naturally be sustained; therefore, no such player could rightfully be awarded any prize in such a tournament.

HOLDS FOE RUNLESS IN DOUBLE HEADER

Owensboro, Ky., July 7.—Pitching a game with but Southern League ability the other day "Lefty" Roberts, of the Owensboro team of the Kitty League, allowed but one run and struck out twenty-seven men in twenty-three innings of play. Twelve hits were made off his delivery.

Roberts won the first game, which was played in the regulation nine innings, 1 to 0. The second game, of fourteen innings, he lost by the same score. Roberts pitched two games against Henderson a few weeks ago without being scored upon.

PACKARD DOWN TO TWIRL

Southpaw Gene Carded to Bid Braves Welcome to Chicago—Tyler Is Stallings' First Pick.

Chicago, July 7.—The Braves of of Boston arrived in town this morning to assail the Cubs in a four-game series in the North Side, starting this afternoon.

If the Cubs should win all four battles, then the Tinkers would be in third place in the National League race. Such luck—or skill—is not expected, yet stranger things have happened.

Gene Packard is Tinker's first choice for pitching duty today, with Tom Seaton a second choice. Both have been effective against the Braves this year. George Stallings, with characteristic silence, failed to indicate his choice, although Tyler may hurl.

The Cubs hustled home from Peoria last night after an exhibition game with Tinker's minor league outfit. Joe got a slice of stock in Peoria in return for kindly offers in assisting discarded athletes down state. The Peoria club is scrapping Bloomington for the leadership in the Three I League race.

Jimmy Archer reports that his damaged thumb is recovering and he will be able to work shortly. This is cheerful information to Cub rooters.

The Braves will be without the services of Dave Bancroft, who is held out indefinitely on account of Braves Field Wednesday afternoon.

ONE MORE DEAL IS FRAMED FOR EVERS

Chicago, July 7.— Manager Joe Tinker and President Weeghman got together today and prepared a piece of fancy thrwares for Eddie Mulligan. The Cubs are close to making a deal for a new shortstop.

The contemplation involves one of the best infielders in the game and if the terms are met Weeghman will probably will pay as much as Charles Comiskey did for Eddie Collins. Tinker does not care to have the name of the player disclosed until the deal is completed.

It was reported from a source pretty close to the Chicago headquarters that the player in question is Johnny Evers. Neither Tinker nor Weeghman would admit it. Evers is particularly anxious to get a transfer to Chicago. Efforts to put a trade over on Pitchers Carter and Aldridge and Outfielder Kelly. Dunn has only one substitute outfielder and if an accident should occur any of his regulars the Cleveland club would be severely handicapped. Cleveland also needs a few pitchers. Dunn figures he will secure good pitchers his club would have a fine chance for keeping in the pennant race to the end.

Manager Hendricks said he would confer with James C. McGill, owner of the Indianapolis club, before taking up negotiations with Dunn for the services of Evers.

INDIANS SEEK MINOR LEAGUERS

Indianapolis, Ind., July 7.—James Dunn of the Cleveland American League Club, who has been here looking over the players of the local American Association team, today asked Manager Hendricks to put a price on Pitchers Carter and Aldridge and Outfielder Kelly. Dunn has only one substitute outfielder and if an accident should occur any of his regulars the Cleveland club would be severely handicapped. Cleveland also needs a few pitchers. Dunn figures he will secure good pitchers his club would have a fine chance for keeping in the pennant race to the end.

Manager Hendricks said he would confer with James C. McGill, owner of the Indianapolis club, before taking up negotiations with Dunn for the services of Evers.

DECORATE GRAVE OF CHAS. RADBOURNE

Bloomington, Ill., July 7.—Members of the National League decorated the grave of Pitcher Charley Radbourne, the old National baseball star, today. Frank C. Bancroft, business manager of the Cincinnati Reds, who managed the Providence club in 1884 when Radbourne pitched seventy-two games in one season, conducted the ceremony.

Tinker Flays Umpires Backs Up Evers' Protest

By BILL BAILEY.

Chicago, July 7.—Manager Joe Tinker of the Cubs has joined his former pal, John Evers, in a vehement protest at the almost unlimited power invested in the umpires of the National League.

The manager told Umpire Klem that the officials by their arbitrary actions had taken the pep out of pepper, the gin out of ginger, had removed the punch from the national game, had robbed baseball of its joy for the fans and were taking the shekels from the pockets of the manager.

More than this, the manager wrote the same to President Tener and believes that his letter will carry weight for the reason that he has never before objected to the attitude or the decisions of the arbitrators.

GAME IS A "FIGHT."

"Baseball is distinctly a fighting game, a red-blooded man's game, a battle, a game of strife, and you remove that element and you ruin the game," said Tinker in his address to Umpire Klem, delivered at the plate in St. Louis before the final Cub-Cardinal contest.

"And you fellows are taking the fight out of the men," continued the manager.

The reason for the protest is the attitude assumed by Umpire Klem and his companions, the manager charging that they threaten a player with a fine and ejection from the game the moment he voices an objection to a decision.

"The Cubs could never have won the game from the Giants in New York in 1908, the game that gave them a pennant and made it possible for them to win the world's championship, had the umpires possessed the power they do this year and enforced it.

NOT ENOUGH LEEWAY.

"The Cubs formed a fighting ball team; they won the game through sheer grit and nerve. That's not the style umpires are doing. The successful player and manager must be aggressive. If the player is, then he lacks personality and isn't attractive to the spectators, and if the manager doesn't possess it, then he is certain to have a second-class club.

"But you can't be aggressive if the umpire tells you it will cost you $10 to be fined and then open your mouth and that you will be chased if you persist."

Jest to decisions whether they are right or wrong; I'll take no chance of losing any part of my salary.

DON'T CARE TO PAY BILLS.

"That's the attitude of the players. They come to the bench after a strike has been called, after they have gone out in a questionable play, and I ask them about it.

"'No, I wasn't out,' they will say. 'Yes, the ball he called that was fair.' Or 'No, it wasn't a strike.'

"'Well, you didn't say anything?' is my comeback.

'No, I have no desire to pay any part of the expenses of the National League,' is the retort, and I can't blame them, for they are right.

"When I talked to Klem in St. Louis I put it to him like this:

'I guess I'm Grover Alexander objected to one of your decisions you would throw him out of a ball game,' I said. "Yet there would be several thousand fans in the stand who paid anywhere from 25 cents to a dollar to see Alexander pitch. You never heard of any one paying money to see an umpire work, did you?"

TINKER'S PARTING SHOT.

"And of course Klem couldn't say that he had. Heres another viewpoint:

"Baseball is too big a game to be ruined by any single individual, whether he be an umpire, a player, a manager or a club owner. Yet that is what these umpires are doing. The successful player and manager must be aggressive. If the player is, and then he lacks personality and isn't attractive to the spectators, and if the manager doesn't possess it, then he is certain to have a second-class club.

"But you can't be aggressive if the umpire tells you it will cost you $10 to be fined and then open your mouth and that you will be chased if you persist."

Eastern Off to Casco
Enchantress Towed In

and, Me., July 7.—After the long-drawn-out run yesterday by the fac- tion of the Eastern Yacht Club fleet from Marblehead to Peak's Islat -or, the yachtsmen were in no hurry today to continue the cruise to Boothbay.

The power boats of the fleet had an enjoyable day in the southern part of the Gulf of Maine, for the weather was very clear, the sea smooth and the absence of wind caused no regret, except one of sympathy for the racers far behind.

The thoughtfulness of the club officials in supplying a fleet of tugs to help those boats unequipped with motive power other than sails was appreciated.

The big schooner Enchantress was towed almost the entire distance, as were several others of the non-racers, while, last evening, many of the yachts which were becalmed off Cape Elizabeth were brought into port by steam.

The fleet st- -ay today was fully as large as -hich left Marblehead yesterday, and there was every indication that a large majority of the yachts would continue on to Bar Harbor.

The run today called for a start off Witch Rock off the eastern entrance to the harbor and a race around Seguin Island to the Boston Lodge whistler off the south end of the outer Heron Island, about twenty-five miles, and then a three-mile run up the Sheepscott to the finish off the Cuckolds bell buoy, twenty-eight miles in all.

QUICK RUN TO SHEEPSCOT.

With a good southwester this run is a quick one for most of the yachts, although a stiff breeze usually kicks up quite a swell in the lower Sheepscot Bay. Several years ago, in making this run, one of the big schooner yachts, which was bound at Bantiun Lodge, beat the fleet in on British by tacking to leeward, with a long board for up the bay on one tack, and then a reach across to the buoy on the other.

Most of the power boats in the fleet planned to make the run to Boothbay today through the islands of lower Casco Bay, and then out to Seguin Island, and around Cape Small Point into the sheepscot.

The trotter, however, waited until well into the forenoon in the hope that the breeze, which was nearly more than a faint air at 8 o'clock, might increase and give something in the way of sport.

WEATHER OF IDEAL VARIETY.

Soon after breakfast Commodore Sears had a consultation with Chairman Mason of the regatta committee, and a tour was made among the racers regarding their desire to make the run a regular race, or to continue on to Boothbay at will. A number of the captains favored waiting until noon, as the run was a short one.

The weather today was again of the ideal variety, especially for power boating, and by 10 o'clock most of the fast fleet were speeding away through the narrow passage into the lower Casco.

NICKALLS PRAISES HARVARD CREWS

New Haven, Ct., July 7.—In an interview Guy Nickalls, the Yale rowing coach, concedes that his varsity crew was beaten by a stronger Harvard crew. If it had not been for the Yale coxswain running his crew on the flag post Yale would have beaten the crew. But it was an advantage to be beaten by Harvard and congratulations are due Mr. Herrick. Like all American coaches who have visited England, he profited by the lessons learned there. He lengthened out his stroke, gave them better catch and was ably assisted in his work by Bill Haines. My old friend Bill Haines of old England trained me in my young days, and he knows a thing or two. In trying to beat Harvard we are up against almost the same system that we have found so successfully, and the toughest proposition in the whole of America.

HITTING.

"I love to hit," Sam Agnew said, "as big league players do, but I always wanna my heart when I can get a hit or two."

"I know you like a hit as two," Clark Griffith made reply;
"But when you hit,I wish you wouldn't hit me on the eye."

As a rule a pitcher is not a good hitter, but the rule does not hold good in the case of Carl Mays. He hits a ball almost every time he pitches.

When a ball player of George McBride's temperament heaves his bat at a pitcher it is almost a cinch that the pitcher has it coming to him.

Mr. McBride drew a suspension, but his fine is still intact. He failed to hit Mr. Mays on the head.

ICELAND.

"I wish I were in Iceland," was the baseball player's cry,
He was playing in St. Louis on a Summer afternoon.

WEATHER OF IDEAL VARIETY.

Perseverance overcometh all things. Joe Jackson has shown that a man can hit in spite of the fact that he is a member of the Athletics.

Usually we do not pay much attention to golf, but we have noticed lately that Chick Evans has been showing signs of developing into a regular player.

The vacation fever is likely to hit anybody. Jack Dillon will not fight again this week.

NOT COMPULSORY.

There is one thing that gladdens me
When two white hopes go to it—
No law upon the statute books
Compels a man to view it.

Official figures reveal the fact that 8,000 persons paid to see the Dillon-Moran fight. Otherwise they are mentally competent.

Considering the recent weather, Sweet is not an inappropriate name for a distance runner.

LINES TO THE ICEMAN.

I like your wet and honest brow,
Your crystal tongs make throat!
I like you well, and yet, somehow,
You get my goat.

I like your shoulders, wide and free;
Your brawny arms—I dote on theme—
But why do you awaken me
At 8 a. m.?

Until the new iceman came on our beat we never knew that the word "ice" could be hollered in two syllables.

Joe Stecher writes that he is thankful for the fact that he is a farmer. A lot of near-champions are not particularly thankful for the fact that he is a wrestler.

Having traveled with a circus for two months, Fred Fulton admits he is not an ape. Everybody who has seen him not is willing to agree with him.

JOHNSTON TO SHOW AT LONGWOOD CLUB

San Francisco, Cal., July 7.—William F. Johnston, national tennis champion, will compete in the national championship tournament at Forest Hills, New York, late in the season. The injury to his back, received here last week, will not interfere with his plans for the season, it was declared today.

Johnston's first tournaments in the East will be the annual invitation meet of the Longwood Cricket Club at Boston. The national champion will also go to Sesbright, Newport and Southampton, and then rest a few days before he defends his national title.

By RINGSIDE.

Two ring buzz-saws, battlers who can hit with the best of them and who pay about as much attention to their defence as the only original Joe Grim, the rugged Philadelphian, who was probably hit oftener and assimilated more punishment than any character ever embraced in the Queensberry world, are carded to liven up the main melee on to-night's flatic-card at the Commercial A. C.

Said rip-snorting, slam-bang artists, or, rather, youths, are Terry Brooks of the West End, the no-relation champion, and "Yank" O'Brien, late of New Orleans, but who has been holding out in the South End of late, mostly Bronx has been a frequent winner in New England rings the past four or five years, and any time he hasn't pleased has been when his vis-a-vis was an out-and-out boxer and got mauled around by his lumping and jabbing.

O'Brien is credited with being equally as rugged a scrapper as Brooks. "Yank" claims he was sore enough, fouled by those Powers the night he went down and stayed down at the Arena and haughtily took credit all claims he didn't like the gaff, so took a flyer when he had the chance.

In his several other Boston starts, especially the night he was on with Young Jeanne, "Yank" was light every second of the way and showed he was a wallper from way back.

Hence, the unexpected must happen with a vehement vengeance for the C. A. C. members to miss out on THE slugging soiree of the entire season tonight.

B. A. Lavelle of Somerville, a former high-stepper among the amateurs, and Young Kenny of Woburn clash in the semi-final event, while the two six-rounders will be rendered by Tony Vatin of Brighton, who is coming through in great style as a professional, and Young Buckley of South Boston, and Jim Flynn of Everett and Jerry Lee of the North End.

The capable Jack Sheehan will referee all four bouts.

THERE will be "mixed bouts" at the Harlem club tonight. Leo Johnson is reported to be one of the star mixed fighting entertainers in the game, will meet Allie Nack of Harlem, and Joe Acevedo, the Californian fighter, will meet "Kid" Jackson, the colored lad from Philadelphia, in the second ten.

BOXING BRIEFS AND GOSSIP

Hans accepted Matt Wells' match for Boston, July 15, providing weight is 135 pounds at 3 o'clock. So wired Nate Lewis, manager of Charles White, the hard-hitting Chicago lightweight, to the AMERICAN today.

The Armory A. A. has been advertising the bout as booked for the past fortnight. While it will scarcely fall through, as it stands to reason Lewis wants his coupon for White before allowing negotiations to go much an short, the match is evidently not definitely on.

It is to be a busy month for White, July 4 he had a red-hot ten-rounder with Johnny Griffiths, the Akron Flash, at Dayton, O., which failed to make weight, and Flanders is matched to box Kid Graham, a mighty big one to give away weight to, at Coffeyville, Kas., 11 so White, doing everything, figuring the way Matt tipped his mitt he was slinging when at with Johnny Dundee at the Armory A. A. on his last Boston start, the firm of Lewis and White is eminently going to be mixed in case that when they contract to box lightweights, welterweights don't come to the ring. So Wells evidently must get down to 135 pounds for next Tuesday night's affair, or maybe there won't be anything doing.

White is programmed to meet Jim Fredericks in a twelve-round, no-decision encounter at Minneapolis July 21. He is also wanted for a New York date the week following in August. So Lewis must protect his gal- lant charges from Sphinx-coming in too light in weight.

Greater Boston boxing fans will be glad to learn what the White-Wells bout is all about, what the weights are going to be and where it is to be pulled off. Also to learn the latest likes to find out in advance, and in the fans pay grand attention to the merits of the Queensberry game, it's safe for fans should be acquainted with such bits of information.

Gala Racing Card Closes Meeting at Windsor

By GUS DALY.

Windsor, Ct., July 7.—Today's getaway day card at Agar Park consists of the 2:13 and 2:20 pace and 2:18 trot. Peter Pan, a Peter the Great five-year-old, owned by Arthur Jones of Dorchester, Mass., and Baron Mirigon are favorites in the 2:18 trot, which has a field of ten ready for the word.

Lucky Clover, Allan Bell, Betting Kittle Mason, Ben Dewart, Fred Wilson, Dorothy Gray and Jess Lee complete the starters. Jess V., a recent winner at Hillsboro, was timed his last eighth in sixteen seconds when he defeated Allan Bell.

Little Bobbie's Pa

He Tries to Convince Ma That He Is Really a Great Spellbinder

By WILLIAM E. KIRK.

I may not be makin much be-tween now & election, sed Pa to Ma last nite. The party needs you. The Prohibition party needs you, I guess, sed Ma. Was did you git that idea in yure hed, that you wud go on the stump?

Sum of the boys has been pleeding with me, sed Pa. Old George Gay sed he that I ought to go out & salv the party. The good old G. O. P. needs oratore. Publick speeking is my middel naim, sed Pa.

I knew always that you weren't tungetied, sed Ma, but I never knew you cud git up in a hall anywure & draw a crowd of grown peeple, & I dont know it now, sed Ma. I guess you better Bide a Wee, sed Ma.

Bo no means, sed Pa. I wud be indeed a poor patriot, Pa sed, if I left my country's noblest party in the hands with it needs me. You & little Bobbie will be proud of me when you see me pulling with pride & vearing with alarm, sed Pa.

I hop you dont make yurself redicklus, sed Ma. That's what I am afrade of.

There is no fear of that, sed Pa. When I git on on the platform & dee-nounce all those Shylocks of greed, that are putting a crown of nettles on the brow of Mankind, sed Pa, the whole country will be ringing for me.

Most likely a patrol wagon will be ringing for you instead, sed Ma. Why in the world cud you attend to yure own business affairs.

A patriot shud think of his own business sumtimes & the biznes of Columbia Hall, sed Pa.

Was did you git to be an patryotick, sed Ma, I wanted you to march in the Preparedness parade & you sed you were too fat, with sum true enuff, goodness knows, Ma sed, but you mite have marched a few blocks at least. Wen are you going to start on this grate chinfest of yures, sed Ma.

Wen the Campaine warms up, sed Pa. Wait till you hear me handing it to the Manny Powers wich has this country in thare slimy Tentakils, sed Pa.

You mean Tentacles, sed Ma.

I mean Tenninkals, sed Pa, it is a familiul expression for claws.

You think me laff, sed Ma.

You never talk me at my true worth, sed Pa. If you had ever took me at my true worth you wud be a proud wife.

If I had took you at yure true worth, sed Ma, I wud have been a old maid nock, maybe. Wont you let me help you to a little dinner, dearest one? It is gitting cold. A orator should be well nourished, sed he.

You wait & see sed Pa. The country is in such too many serrius than you no, wen I git out on the platform. We shall see.

Hon, dear bubbe, sed Ma, I am afraide it is this hot wether going to yure hed. It is a good thing Mister Pierce isent living now, sed Ma, you wud git his bob away from him. Bobbie, sed Ma, you have a grate father. You ought to be prouder than the Hughes boy, sed Ma.

To wash silk underwear

Glove Silk! Crepe de Chine! Washable Satins!

Get out the most precious brassiere in your collection—

—your very favorite bit of sheer silk, cobwebby lace and soft ribbons—

—the one you have always dreaded to trust to soap and water.

Wash it with Lux.

Yes, Lux and lukewarm water.

Wash it dozens of times, the Lux way, and it won't turn yellow!

Hard to believe?

Perhaps—after the discouraging experiences you have had with ordinary soaps. But Lux is wholly different from anything you have ever seen.

When you see how often your daintiest, prettiest silk garments can be laundered—when you see how they keep their whiteness and their fresh, silky sheen—when you realize that you can wear them so much more often—you will say you wouldn't be without Lux—not even if it cost four times its price!

See the flakes yourself

Get a package of Lux, pure essence of soap in flakes, and see for yourself. Try it!

Lux can't injure anything that pure water alone will not injure.

Negligees That Are Both Practical and Inexpensive

These Attractive Models Are Reproduced Here by Special Arrangement with GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine

From Good Housekeeping Magazine for July

This matinee is of blue, pink or lavender and cream Georgette crepe and silk Spanish lace. The petticoat is of accordion plaited net and cap of white net, with roses and lace.

Charming in every particular is this negligee. The coatee of chiffon dotted with roses over a satin slip, pink, blue or lavender, is sure to please the taste of the most fastidious and the most critical woman.

That daintiness may be both practical and inexpensive is shown in this white dotted Swiss kimono with organdy collar, cuffs and revers.

The Biography of a Sinner

Len Develops a Sudden Admiration for Mildred, Who Loves Rex

By ANN LISLE.

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

I got through the day somehow until three o'clock. There was mother's breakfast tray to take up, the dusting to do, the beds to make, the flowers to cut, and the table to set for noon dinners.

Then there were Nellie's complaints to listen to because she was expected to do all the work in that big house! And finally I had to go down to the market to select the day's supplies. Father did not believe in ordering over the telephone. He said you got short weight and second rate stuff if you didn't pick it out yourself.

After dinner Rex took me astride and asked me if I'd spoken to Mildred. I told him no, but that I was going to stop in on my way to the boat landing when I went to meet De Witt at three o'clock.

"Now you take a little note for me, Vera?" asked Rex shyly.

At two I turned in at the Francis gate, had stopped at the florist's and bought a sumptuous bouquet of long-stemmed roses. I had put Rex's letter in the box. What I did with my twenty-dollar goldpiece was my own affair, and if Mildred chose to think that Rex had sent her the flowers surely I couldn't be blamed for that!

It had cost me three dollars the day before to go in search of Len. I spent twice as much for the American beauties I took Mildred, but I felt much richer in the possession of the crumpled ten-dollar bill and the dollar's change that remained than I had when the lonely gold-piece lay in my pocket-book and my aching heart accompanied it.

MILDRED OVERJOYED

Mildred was overjoyed with the roses. She waited to dash to the telephone and speak to Rex at once. But I wouldn't let her. I insisted that she must write him a note, when I would deliver when I went home to supper, and that she must telephone and ask for me, not Rex, at seven o'clock.

Intrigue seemed to be coming very naturally to me. I knew that father disapproved of a boy-and-girl affair between Rex and Mildred and that he would do anything in his power to foster an interest between his cousin and the daughter of the richest man in Rosedale. But I remember the glow of joy in Rex's dear gray eyes, and I wanted to keep that flame lighted.

De Witt explained that he had waited at the ballhouse until half-past three; that when I hadn't come he had telephoned my house only to be told I wasn't there. Then he'd gone over to Aunt Sadie's, as he was a little worried about me, and Corinne had told him that she had seen me going by on my way to the station.

They had gone in inquire of Mr. Hunter, the stationmaster, and he had told them of my trip up to Oxford. Of course they knew that meant that I was going to Len. They kept on the river in order to have plenty of privacy to discuss the affair of Rex and the Stacey girl and my unseemly actions.

It all sounded natural enough. The only person with whom De Witt could discuss my affairs was my cousin Corinne, and that he should feel the need of discussing them was not surprising.

DE WITT EXPLAINS

We drew our boats into a little wooded cove forming to the jutting out of the Rosedale woodland bank. There I munched the caramels my lover had brought and felt a sudden renewal of interest in him—partly because he had remembered how I loved caramels, and partly because his slowly growth of hair had always fascinated me and the sound of his voice lulled and soothed me.

I promised to wait for him till he had made good in the university. He would be but two years as instructor.

"They're giving me twelve hundred a year to start with, and I'm pretty sure I'll get an excellent professorship and raise within the next second year. By then you'll be nineteen and I think you're dutiful won't mind when I ask for you."

"We can manage on eighteen hundred—especially if your father gives you a little money. Of course I wouldn't take anything from him, but I want my wife to be well dressed, and I wouldn't let Irene Corinne borrow her best hat and pretty clothes her father wants to buy her."

I pillowed my head against the warm strength of his shoulder and frowned about the little bones we would have in a year or two, though I was very much in love—but I was almost as much interested in the neon curtains with their rose colored ribbons in them back I violated my dining room window as I was in De Witt's caress. I was still unaware of my own turbulent capacity for emotion.

We both agreed that it wouldn't do to say anything to father now. He would think me much too young, and he wouldn't listen to a "school romance" with only twelve hundred a year and prospects. I was even afraid to have De Witt write to me, but he conceived the clever idea of sending the letters to Corinne's house inside of envelopes addressed to her.

I suggested that I'd rather have them go to Mildred Francis. But he brushed it aside, insisting that there was no need of taking an outsider into our confidence.

So I began my clandestine romance. De Witt and I saw Corinne a week and I wrote to him once a week. I didn't enjoy being forced into this intimacy with Corinne. I had an idea that she was telling Myra Herned about it, and I in turn confided in Mildred Francis.

Girls seem to need the safety valve of a confidant. Hitherto I had given all my confidence to Rex. Now he was strangely slip and rarely sent with me. And talking to Mildred seemed to keep me almost more in touch with him than talking to him!

I knew that Rex was managing to see Mildred almost every day. Sometimes I fancied that Len was watching him with dogged patience. Then I dismissed the thought as silly. Len was completely absorbed in his work, and he gave his evenings to chemistry experiments down at the factory.

He wanted to turn out a compact cake of soap of half size that would produce as much lather and last as long as the old large size laundry soap. He was working on a washing powder, too, that would clean the most delicate fabrics and freshen their colors at the same time.

A GREAT INTIMACY

A great intimacy seemed to be growing between father and Len. They talked soap and washing powders and "coats" and "overhead" and factory matters incessantly. Rex seemed a little out of things. He was in the shipping department, and took occasional trips to little nearby towns to get orders from the wholesalers for the factory products.

The days drooned through uneventfully but pleasantly. Mildred and I were together sewing during the long afternoons and occasionally Myra and Corinne joined us. Once or twice Myra mentioned De Witt Hazen's name and watched me rather critically when she did it. But Mildred always managed to change the subject promptly. I used to wonder if the girls would some days begin teasing Mildred about Rex. But her little romance was a secret.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Truly a feature that women want to read. What the stars predict in Madeleine Force's second romance. Remarkable parallel in the difficulties that beset both marriage ceremonies and other extraordinary similarities that make astrology fear another tragedy menaces her happiness. Told in the next Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

Our Wonderful World

The ceremony of nominating cardinals, which takes place at Rome, is not without its picturesque side. The Consistory of the Sacred College meets in secret—though particulars of the proceedings are afterwards given to the press—and following upon a brief address, the Pope names the persons he wishes to elevate to the purple. His nomination is final, but in accordance with the old custom when the cardinals voted for the election of their comrades, he asks, "What is your desire?" The cardinals then silently lay down their red silk caps, rise, and bow. It is the formal assent, and the new cardinals are declared elected.

England has cardinals other than those created by the Pope. At one time there were officials of that title at the principal cathedrals, whose duty it was to visit the sick and relieve the needy. But Dr. Pusey is now alone in the possession of a senior and a junior cardinal, elected by the deans from among the minor canons. One of the holders of the title recently was the author of the "Jackdaw of Rheims."

"Carry your own life-boat," is the motto of an Italian inventor, it appears, who has devised what is probably the most ambitious lifesaving appliance on record.

When not in use the apparatus is packed into what looks like a man's suitcase, measuring 24 in. by 16 in. by 8 in., and weighing twenty pounds. When disaster is imminent the passenger brings the suitcase on deck, breaks the seal, and the apparatus opens out and becomes a small boat.

If it is necessary to abandon the ship the passenger steps into his private boat, closes the outer cover, and launches his craft by hurling himself overboard. Then, according to Mr. Piperno, the apparatus rights itself in the water, the top cover is thrown open, and the occupant finds himself sitting in an absolutely unsinkable ship.

A Terrible Mistake

"Hallo, Brown," said Jones. "I saw your wife this morning. By Jove, that new coat of hers must have cost a pot of money! You're doing specially well at present—"

"No, not really," replied Brown, moodily. "Fact is, she got it by accident."

"By accident!" exclaimed Jones. "How was that?"

"Well, old fellow, it was this way. I got home rather late the other night. The hall was very dark, but I could just distinguish a figure standing by the stair. I slipped up to her, put my arm around her waist, and whispered: 'Mary, give your little boy a kiss.'"

"But—but," stammered Jones, "I thought your wife's name was Kate?"

"It is," murmured Brown; "that's how she got the coat!"

A Long Job

The landlord of an English public house engaged a young man from the country as potman. The first day of his arrival, after he had cleaned all the pots and cans, and dusted up the bar yard, he required what he should do next.

"Take the ladder and a pail of water, get the feathers from the washhouse and clean the lamps in front," answered the landlord.

"All of 'em?" asked Joskins.

"Yes, of course," replied Bung.

And the young man started on the job.

Two hours passed, and the landlord thought it was time he had done, and went to see. Just as he was going out Joskins came in, hot with perspiration.

"I've done all the lamps in this 'ere road, sir, but I shall want some more water afore I can do t'others."

He had cleaned all the gas-lamps in the street.

Collecting Memories

Life Is a Continuous Going to School

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

No man is a failure if he can learn from his own mistakes. No woman has missed her chance in life if she can accept her own blunders quietly and calmly and profit by them.

In old age one gazes back across the panorama of life and sees struggle that was not rewarded, blundering that was bitterly expiated, suffering that marred, and a series of human experiences good and evil, which, perhaps, had one life to live over, one would manage very differently. But, after all, each of us is what we are because of what we have experienced. We stand each year as the sum total of all the failings and failure or effort and success which have filled our days up to the point when we reckon our own age.

What we experience matters far less than what interpretation we make of it.

With life and bitter regret I have very little sympathy or patience. Remorse is a waste of perfectly good energy—and I object to waste.

Suppose all through one day you could think very badly, suppose you say stupid and awkward things and are conscious that you are making a very bad impression thereby? Suppose you are mentally and physically "all thumbs?"

Suppose opportunity comes and you make nothing of it. What good will it do you to lie awake at night and toss and tumble feverishly on your bed regretting all you have done and imagining how differently you might have done it? What possible avail can it be for you to reproach yourself for your blundering and grieve over each ill advised move you have made that day? All of that will only wear you out and bring you weary and worn to the duties of the next day.

The way to accept your blunders is in this spirit. "Well, I made a pretty bad fizzle of things today. I did all the things I shouldn't have done and I neglected every opportunity that came my way. However, perhaps that's just as well, for now that I understand my own unreadiness and lack of judgment in today's proceedings I shan't need to go through them again. I've simply learned what not to do and what to seize upon, and try to do. So this day wasn't wasted at all!"

After all, life is an endless going to school. One keeps having tasks set and one's failure to do well or ill and learning through failure as well as through success.

Household Suggestions

Many ladies embroider linen or lawn skirt blouses or linen centerpieces for their friends. Many, too, though naturally neat, will find their work soiled before it is finished. If one desires to make up such material, or give it to a friend without washing, it may be made perfectly clean by sprinkling it lightly with French chalk and rolling up for a day or two. The chalk may afterwards be shaken out.

* * *

When a wicker chair requires cleaning, dust it well and wash in tepid soapsuds. Mix together equal parts of turpentine and sweet oil and a few drops of methylated spirits. When the chair is quite dry rub with a cloth moistened with the polish.

* * *

An excellent method of cleaning velvet is to scrape a light dust of powdered alum over the velvet with a brush lightly away with a clean brush. This will be found almost invariably to restore the bloom and also to raise the pile.

* * *

When buying a hair mattress, choose one filled with black rather than white hair, as the latter has generally been bleached, which deprives it of springiness and makes it "mat" more quickly than the black or even gray hair.

* * *

To wash brushes and combs, put a teaspoonful of ammonia in a basin of hot water and dip the brush up and down in it, letting the comb remain in the water for a few minutes. In this way all the grease will disappear, and after rinsing in cold water both brushes and combs will be perfectly clean.

* * *

Vinegar added to black lead gives a more lasting polish to the grate.

To cool jellies or blancmanges in a short time, take a handful of salt and the same of soda, put it in a bowl of water and stand the jelly-mould in it.

Carranza's Letter Offers No Reason for Abandoning Intervention

THE nation is informed from Washington that the Carranza note is eminently conciliatory.

Straightway the immediate withdrawal of the federal troops from Mexican territory and the return of the militia to their homes within a few weeks is discussed in high official circles.

Secretary Lansing takes his vacation, and the President feels at liberty to devote all his mind to the campaign of greater interest to him at home.

Correspondents of afternoon newspapers who had the first opportunity to secure the opinion of the capital on the subject brimmed over with enthusiasm.

"It is more than conciliatory" was the opinion gathered by one after a tour of the federal offices interested. "Its pacific tone is surprising"; "General Carranza's statement of pacific intentions would appear in the light of a complete backdown had not the United States met him part way already"; "the pacific character of the communication is extremely pleasing to the administration"; "there is no doubt in the minds of officials that the way has been opened for an amicable adjustment of the dispute"—and so on in a grand chorus of satisfaction.

It is obvious that the correspondents faithfully reflect the estimate which the administration, for public purposes at least, has put upon the Carranza note.

As a further evidence of the security which the administration professes to feel, Secretary Lansing announces that he is leaving Washington at once for a month's vacation.

We do not apprehend that the safety of the nation will be endangered by Secretary Lansing's fishing trip, but we are unable to see why the administration heaves this sigh of relief and seeks to give out the impression that the Mexican crisis is past.

Can a few soft words penned by Carranza's secretary make amends for the raid upon Columbus and the slaughter of Carrizal?

Are we to accept as "highly conciliatory" his proposition to submit Mexico's right to murder our citizens and our soldiers to mediation by the Latin-American countries?

Will any sane and responsible officer of the United States believe that the promise of this leader of bandit bands to try to "prevent the recurrence of incidents which may complicate and aggravate the situation" is worth an instant's serious consideration when he himself has been responsible for the most aggravated of these assaults?

If Carranza made this promise in good faith there is still absolutely no reason to believe that he could carry it out.

It is merely the same promise that he has made after every outrage upon Americans that has been brought to his knowledge.

He has utterly failed of performance in the past. What hope is there that he will fulfil his promise in the future, particularly when American threats have proved futile and American arms impotent?

Carranza reduces the causes of friction between the two nations to two:

One is the presence of American troops in Mexico. But American troops went into Mexico with Carranza's consent and approval to prosecute the impractical pursuit of Villa that our visionary President had devised.

The other is the insecurity of the American frontier. But the American border is made insecure by the unprovoked and unjustifiable raids of Mexico's murderous soldiery.

Apparently he believes the slaughter of twelve United States troopers at Carrizal to be adequately atoned for by the surrender of those of our soldiers who fortunately survived this treacherous attack.

Against Mexican outrages along the border he sets up the pettifogging plea that some Americans have committed outrages in Mexico.

When he can produce an instance of organized troops, with machine guns and other military equipment, raiding a Mexican town and giving battle to the regular forces of Mexico, there encamped, this offset may be considered.

But, as a matter of fact, the whole Carranza letter is shifty and evasive of the main points of the American quarrel with Mexico.

That quarrel is not alone based upon the slaughter at Carrizal, or the murderous raid upon Columbus, or the massacre at Santa Ysabel. It is not even founded wholly upon conditions along the border.

We are morally compelled to intervene in Mexico because there has ceased to be any form of government there. For years our interests there have been raided by this and that bandit chief, our citizens murdered, our women outraged.

As the Mexican poet, Raymon del Valle, fleeing from his native land, plaintively said only day before yesterday, "There is no more Mexico."

So long as our weak and futile administration continues its vacillating and humiliating course there will be no more Mexico—in the sense that there will not be a nation in which life and property are safe, industry and commerce protected, and in which conditions of order and civilization prevail.

Carranza's inadequate and indefinite note makes no reference to the broader counts of the American indictment of Mexico.

He makes no reference to the conditions which have resulted in the brutal slaughter of hundreds of Americans in Mexico and have driven tens of thousands of Americans in terror from that land.

He passes over in indifferent silence the destruction of hundreds of millions of dollars of American capital in Mexico.

He ignores the fact that he never has been and never will be able to impose his rule upon and keep peace in Mexico.

And he offers what? A system of joint patrol of the border, and the submission of questions of American life and honor to the mediation of Latin-American countries!

The communication is not conciliatory. It is shrewd, diplomatic, if you will—but essentially evasive, impotent and insulting, worthy of the cunning mind that has made our diplomats look not like schoolmasters, but like schoolboys, and cowardly schoolboys at that. Carranza's insolent note dodges every vital issue, and retracts not one iota of the position held by the arrogant Mexican chieftain from the start.

The "victory" of the Wilson administration is, as usual, a shameful and humiliating American defeat.

Preventive Dentistry and the Dental Nurse

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

PART II.

SEVERAL great dental societies and committees of dental experts have been studying the problem of caries of the teeth of the great army of children, notably one appointed by the Health Commission of New York city. The latter body has come to the conclusion that the best practical means of meeting the situation is the establishment and training of a body of so-called dental hygienists, or dental nurses, who can be given a special course of training covering about a year in dental hospitals and clinics. This will equip them to inspect and care for children's mouths, cleaning off the tartar and polishing away the rough spots and erosions from the surface of the teeth, which are the beginning of decay and the formation of cavities.

They can also train children in tooth brush drill, prescribe mild antiseptics, give attention to beginning ulceration and infection of the gums and mouth, and pick out those cases which require operative treatment, accompany them to the hospital or clinic and follow them up and see that they get and give themselves proper after-care.

It is an honor and a credit to the dental profession that the proposal for their training and employment should have come from it, even apparently against its own selfish interests and for the broader welfare of the community. Their entrance into the field of public health marks a new era in preventive dentistry and in the welfare and happiness of our children.

The motto of the community for its children should be the Scriptural one, "Keep thy mouth with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life," and for mouth read teeth and tonsils.

Not merely toothache and all its tortures and waste of food material by poor grinding, but many forms of anaemia and malnutrition, chorea or St. Vitus dance, half the disturbances of sleep and night terrors, infections of the heart, infections of the joints popularly known as rheumatism, Bright's disease and thyroid have intimate relation with adenoids and nasal obstruction, catarrh, bronchitis, pneumonia and tuberculosis, form the dragon's brood which will be reaped from neglect of the ivory keepers of the gate of life.

Art of Housekeeping Is Becoming a Science, Says Garrett P. Serviss

Kitchen Genius, Long a Heritage of French Housewife, Is Now Made Possible for American Women by Fast Improvement of Mechanical Aids

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE reign of the good housekeeper is only just beginning. Every month sees some new invention that helps to diminish the slavery of housework. Housekeeping has for ages been an art, and, as with all arts, its practitioners range in their abilities from mediocrity through fair talent up to positive genius.

Now housekeeping is becoming a science, and science has this advantage over art—that it tends to equalize abilities by bringing results through mechanical and automatic methods which anybody can employ.

Kitchen Known as the Theatre of the French Housewife

For a plain male citizen, who knows little about the secrets of the kitchen, it is a wonderful revelation to read the articles in Good Housekeeping Magazine and to look at the devices there shown which relate to this fast-growing science. Almost everything about a house can now be done with half the expenditure of labor and time formerly required. To be without this knowledge and these inventions is not merely to be behind the times, but it is to live harder, less well and more expensively than there is any necessity for.

The kitchen is the stomach of the house, and upon the way in which it performs its functions the welfare of the whole establishment depends. My attention has just been called to a model French kitchen. All the world has long looked up to France as the ideal home of culinary art, and it is evident that she does not intend to be left behind in the modern transformation of this art into a science.

The kitchen has also been called "the theatre of the French housewife," and this theatre is becoming really a fascinating place with its display of electrical ranges, scientific lamps, automatic grinders, mills and churns, Pasteur filters, coffee makers, ice-cream freezers, devices for easily getting rid of waste substances, porcelain sinks as white and clean as Alpine snow, scouring machines, filters, convenient cupboards, and all the glittering array of nickel, silver, copper, aluminum, bronze and granite ware utensils that fill the room with bright reflections.

Mistress Goes to Kitchen Not to Visit, but as a Helper

One of the great charms of a French kitchen is that the mistress is frequently to be seen there, not merely as a visitor, but as a helper and director. She inspires her servants by her presence, and by her advice. She does not pretend to live in another world than theirs. They know that she understands their business as well as they do themselves, and even better. She can take their place if necessary. This is as true of the rich as of the relatively poor.

The economy of the French people has long been world-famous, and nowhere is it more brilliantly displayed than in the kitchen. A French family, as has often been said, could live, and live well, upon the waste of many American families. And the exercise of this economy—this art of getting all the good out of things—fascinates those who practice it. It has the charm of all applied knowledge. They not only get all that is good—they make the good better. I know many a little country inn in France where, for three or four francs, wine included (a franc is worth 20 cents), one can have a really better meal than can be had in an American city for two or three dollars.

And yet meats, and similar things, cost about as much in France as they do here. The secret lies in economical management and good cooking. It is no wonder that a first-rate French cook can command in America a salary of $5,000, or even more. And if he, or she, retains on this side of the Atlantic the economical skill learned at home, more than half the salary is saved to the employer.

We Should Pattern After the French to Learn Economical Wisdom.

One thing to be noticed in the French kitchen is that there is usually no false economy in the choice of apparatus. Everything is of the best, or at least good and substantial. The kitchen, in its way, is as well furnished as the parlor. You may be sure that this spells economy in the end, for if it did not it would not be found in France.

I have often been surprised on entering a house in France, which, in America, might be taken as the abode of people in very humble circumstances, to find a far larger and better-stocked kitchen than many rather pretentious houses possess here, accompanied by a culinary skill in its mistress which would earn her a large salary on this side of the ocean.

No doubt we shall learn this economical wisdom in good time—and the sooner the better.

The Iceman

By William F. Kirk

BE kind to the Iceman, my neighbor;
He sweats while he's keeping you cool.
Without his intelligent labor
Your butter would melt in a pool.
Oh, hark to this hot weather ballad!
Oh, list to this lay of good cheer!
The lettuce would wilt in the salad
If the Iceman should fail to appear.

He sometimes trips up on addition,
Though somehow he never falls down.
When you went to school for tuition
He was helping the old man downtown.
Mean persons who question his adding
The Iceman will never forgive.
He knows when they die they'll go gadding
In a place where no Iceman could live.

Forgive him in all of your dealing;
Don't mind the hard things he might say.
Your heart would grow cold and unfeeling
If you sat on an iceless day.
Perhaps if you've not been a nice man
You will go to some sulphurous pool,
And you'll long for a sight of the Iceman
And the kitchen he used to keep cool.
